A $75 Thousand Fund Transfer for Sheriff

KINGSTON

Ulster County Legislators voted 30 to 2 Thursday night to transfer $75,000 in funds to Sheriff William B. Martin's personal services account to help meet a deficit in that department.

Of that amount $30,000 came from the county's contingency account and the balance from "surpluses" in the sheriff's department account such as $20,000 in food, $3,000, laundry; $4,500, cars; and $3,500 for furniture among other items.

Voting against the transfer were Glenn A. Debrosky (R-Dist. 6) and Thomas Roach (R-Dist. 8).

Roach suggested that in transferring the funds, the legislature knows full well that "Martin will be back for more money for food and will hoodwink us again."

Many legislators voted for the transfer reluctantly, they said, because deputies have to be paid and prisoners fed. Long and lively, the legislature meeting in the County Office Building produced a number of controversial issues with the board approving 18 to 14 a proposal to accept payments of county taxes from the City of Kingston in three equal payments. One legislator, James Gilpatrick (D-City) was absent.

Some legislators felt such an arrangement is of no benefit to the county, that towns have to collect and pay their taxes in January and February and that it was not fair for the city to have until March, June and September of each year to make its payments.

It was pointed out on the other hand that the city now does not always pay its taxes to the county until September so that the measure would mandate that they pay in March, June and September.

A number of legislators contended that "no deal" was made between the city and the county with regard to the proposal and the recent passage of a county park bond issue.

The board agreed to refer to committee a resolution requesting consideration of an additional appropriation of $50,000 (one-half reimbursable) for mosquito control in 1975.

A 28 to 3 vote approved a proposal to sell county-owned property on Gage Street in Kingston to Stavo Industries for $60,000. The property was formerly used by the Ulster County Highway Department, which has consolidated its operation at the quarry site off Hurley Avenue.

The board defeated a resolution calling for establishment of a job description for the county's public relations director by a vote of 19 to 13, after extended discussion in which it was pointed out that the proposal was not meant as a criticism of the PR director Albert Cawein.

Still others felt that the public relations office was falling down in keeping the public informed on the activities of the legislature and county department activities.

There was criticism too that the proposal had not come through the committee system rather than being proposed by individual legislators.

The board voted to ask the state to designate Black Creek in the towns of Lloyd and Esopus under the Wild Rivers Act, to provide a free pass system for senior citizens at county parks, Mondays through Fridays; and authorized a contract between the county and the New York State Division of Criminal Justice Services for updating criminal records. It also approved a resolution providing interim regulations pertaining to the freedom of information law.

The legislature expressed its opposition to an increase in federal gasoline taxes, agreed to appropriating federal funds under the special manpower revenue sharing as well as agreeing to federal emergency treatment assistance funds to be administered by the Soil Conservation Service.

It set the date of Oct. 30 at 8 p.m. in Gardiner Fire House for a public hearing on a proposed agriculture district in the Town of Gardiner. It also adopted the agriculture district of Hurley, Marletown and Ulster as District 10 and also adopted Agricultural District 12 which takes in Rochester and Marletown.

Kissinger Unscathed In Shooting Accident

DAMASCUS (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger narrowly escaped injury today when an Israeli-made Uzi submachine gun fell from a rack inside his plane and discharged two shots that slightly wounded Secret Service agent Walter Bothe in the right arm and grazed his forehead.

Kissinger was only 20 feet away when the incident occurred as his plane was taxiing for takeoff from Cairo to Damascus and was not hurt. Later he was able to joke about the incident with Bothe and newsmen aboard the plane. Bothe remained with the party. The incident was not expected to have any major effect on Kissinger's seven-day, seven-nation Middle East mission in search of a permanent peace formula between Israel and the Arab nations and perhaps lower Arab oil prices.

Kissinger conferred twice in Cairo with President Anwar Sadat and reported "good talks" in a meeting in which he was greeted again as "Dear Henry" as he kissed Sadat on both cheeks. He flies back to Cairo Monday after talks in Damascus, Israel, Jordan and Saudi Arabia. En route home he stops in Algeria and Morocco.

Kissinger arrived in Damascus half an hour late for his talks with President Hafez Assad, Assad, recently reelected by the Soviet Union, is one of the more militant Arab leaders and has threatened not to renew the U.N. peace keeping mandate on the Golan Heights separating Israeli and Syrian forces. Kissinger hoped to persuade him to keep the U.N. forces another six months.

They pulled all the shades in my cabin shut, because at first they thought it might have come from the outside.

Kissinger rested briefly at the Rawdan government guest residence in Damascus and began his talks with Assad at 1:30 p.m. (7:30 a.m. EDT). He was flying to the Jordanian capital of Amman this afternoon after an expected three-hour conference with Assad.

The Uzi is a rapid-fire submachine gun and security officials said they keep it on hand in case large crowds get out of control. When it discharged accidentally, Bothe fell to the floor in the galley of the plane and Kissinger was rushed to his forward cabin by other Secret Service agents.

The agents did not know immediately whether the shots had been fired inside or outside the plane at Cairo's heavily guarded airport.

Bothe was given immediate medical attention aboard the plane. Departure was delayed 30 minutes while agents checked the aircraft. They found one small bullet hole in the ceiling and fixed it.

Kissinger later came back to check personally on the condition of Bothe, who is his senior security guard. He told him: "You are lucky." Bothe was permitted to speak to his family in Alexandria, Va., over the plane's radio to assure them he was only slightly hurt.

A doctor on board said they might fly Bothe to Beirut if hospitalization proved necessary. But Bothe appeared to be in good condition and told newsmen, "I want to stay with the trip."

The secretary of state is scheduled to return to Cairo Sunday night for more talks with Sadat following conversations with leaders in Syria, Jordan, Israel and Saudi Arabia.

He may return to Syria Monday for more talks with President Hafez Assad. He will then visit Algeria and Morocco before returning to Washington Tuesday.

Simon Defends Ford's Economy Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said today — despite a senator's complaint that President Ford's economic plans would be a return to Herbert Hoover policies — tax cuts for businesses eventually will help the consumer.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairing a hearing of Congress's Joint Economic Committee, said the five-year impact of Ford's tax program would be to increase in individuals' taxes by $2.6 billion while cutting corporation taxes overall by $12 billion.

"That was the old Herbert Hoover trickle down theory — help the rich guy and eventually the poor guy will benefit,"

Proxmire said.

But Simon said Ford's program would induce corporations to expand their output, leading to a curtailment in the rate of inflation and ultimately benefiting consumers.

He said that was the best way for people to "get goods at the lowest possible price."

The argument was about Ford's proposal Tuesday to increase the investment tax credit for businesses which expand or modernize from 7 to 10 per cent. The effect is to cut taxes business pays by about $2 billion a year in the first full year and more in future years.

On Thursday President Ford's chief economist said the country can look for the rate of inflation—now 12 per cent—to decline 2 or 3 percentage points by springtime.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of Ford's Council of Economic Advisers, volunteered that figure when asked to supply a number for the President's Tuesday prediction of "a meaningful reduction" in the rate of inflation by early 1975.

Meantime, much of the economic news pointed toward higher—not lower—prices.

The Agriculture Department said the early frost would yield a corn crop 16 per cent below last years—pointing to still higher meat prices in 1975 and 1976. The soybean crop was disappointing too.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices, which recently had been rising at an annual rate of 35 per cent, had virtually leveled off in September. The rise reported Thursday was one-tenth of 1 per cent.

But Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve System, said the dropoff was only temporary. "I don't consider that more than one of said.

The White House issued a statement saying Ford favors decontrol of domestic oil prices.

"The President feels that oil should be sold on a free market basis," the statement said.

The White House said decontrol would raise the price of a gallon of gasoline by only 5 cents. But Senate Interior Committee economists estimated the impact as a 12 to 15 cent per gallon increase.

Controlled oil—60 per cent of domestic production—can sell for only $5.25 a barrel. The remaining 40 per cent of oil—from wells opened since 1972—sells for about $10.75 a barrel.

On the political front, Ford's program came under continued attack.

'Embarrassed and Humiliated'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., says he was merely going home from a party with family friends when police stopped his car and found him drunk, with scratches on his face.

A woman ran from the car and jumped into a nearby pool of water. The chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee said she was a family friend and that he was "embarrassed and humiliated" by the incident.

It came less than three weeks before an election in which he faces the first serious Republican opponent of his career.

He apologized for the "discomfort" he had caused his friends, and apologized to his family, especially his wife Polly, who he said could not be along and now "is blaming herself for not accompanying us that night even with her broken foot."

Mills was in seclusion Thursday while his office issued a three-page statement telling his story.

It said Mills would return to the office today and resume his duties at the helm of the committee which has held two days of hearings on President Ford's tax program without its chairman.

When the news first broke Tuesday afternoon, Mills' administrative assistant, Eugene Goss, said Mills wasn't there, knew nothing about the incident, and had loaned his car to a neighbor.

Goss would not comment Wednesday when the Park Police said it was indeed the fatherly, intellectual Mills whom they had stopped and shepherd home after picking Annabella Battistella from the water.

The statement said the original denial came because of a misunderstanding. Mills said he had told Goss press reports of the incident were inaccurate, and Goss interpreted that to mean that Mills was not there.

Goss issued his own statement Thursday saying he had misunderstood.

"I, of course, deeply regret any embarrassment that it may have caused him and his family, and any inconvenience it has caused others," he said.

What the incident means remains to be seen.

His opponent, Judy Petty, said she would not comment on the incident but her campaign aides were reported to be delighted with the turn of events.

Until now, it appeared there was little chance she could win although she expected to take a hefty share of the votes.

Firm to Study Lloyd Nuclear Site

HIGHLAND indicating that it is still very much interested in a 2,300-acre tract in the Town of Lloyd as the possible site for a nuclear-fueled power generating plant, the New York State Atomic and Space Development Authority announced today that it has retained a consulting firm to prepare a Master Development Plan and an Environmental Management Plan for the proposed Mid-Hudson location.

Saratoga Associates, a consulting firm that provides services in architecture, landscape architecture and planning, will attempt to determine and examine various development options that would be compatible with the site itself and the community environment as a whole. ASDA Chairman James G. Cline, in announcing the retention of the upstate firm, said that Saratoga Associates has been specifically instructed to consider alternative types of power facility development options (atomic, oil, coal, and hydro-electric, for instance), and to determine which of those options would have the least impact on the Lloyd site and the environment of the Mid-Hudson Valley.

With numerous citizens and civic groups in the Mid-Hudson area mobilized against the prospect of an atomic generating plant, the ASDA chairman was quick to emphasize that the authority encourages an "open planning" process, with all studies and information made fully available to concerned federal, state and local agencies and officials, environmental and civic groups and the general public before any "significant decisions" are made.

Cline added that it is the authority's policy to solicit information and advice from these groups, as well.

The study to be performed by Saratoga Associates is just one of several that will be, or have been, conducted to determine the feasibility of establishing an electric generating facility in the Town of Lloyd, ASDA officials have stated that the studies will continue until it is determined one way or the other whether a power plant should be located at the proposed site.

In addition to considering the location and configuration of the proposed power plant, the Saratoga Associates will also be examining the most suitable uses for those areas of the site that are not required for power production purposes. The appropriateness of the area as an environmental education and resource management center, ASDA's interest in Lloyd; town for instance, has been under study by the Audubon Society through a cooperative agreement with ASDA. That possible use, among others, will be considered by the consulting firm. In announcing retention of Saratoga Associates, Cline cited the firm's "proven sensitivity to environmental issues." The firm, he said, has conducted similar studies for other proposed generating facilities.

ASDA's responsibility involves site selection and acquisition only; the authority does not build or operate electric generating facilities. Nevertheless, ASDA's two-year involvement with the Lloyd site has prompted considerable public outcry. A number of groups have organized to oppose ASDA's interest in Lloyd; town residents, in fact, voted overwhelmingly against the plan in an advisory referendum July 1.

Ford Denounces Cutoff of Aid to Turkey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Act of 1961 and the Foreign Military Sales Act say U.S. Congress to delay a military aid can only be used "dangerous and misguided." The cutoff would last until halt in military aid to Turkey. Ford certified that "substantial progress" had been made in wreck the congressional pre-Cyprus negotiations. election recess in a veto fight. The administration says Turkey will interpret the cutoff as a threat—negotiate or else—and raising dinner in Detroit this will shatter efforts to reach Thursday, Ford appealed to a peace agreement. Congress to delay its aid cutoff in Detroit, Ford denounced for 60 days to allow the cutoff votes. "It is my administration time to seek an unalterable conviction such a solution to the Cyprus conflict, drastic change in our long. The Senate already has standing bipartisan foreign agreed to the delay, allowing policy would severely damage the aid to continue until Dec. the national security interests 15. The House was to consider of the United States and the free world," he said.

Both houses of Congress had "If this action is not voted earlier to halt military reversed, history could well grounds that use of U.S. record that the Congress has weapons in Turkey's invasion of embarked on a dangerous and Cyprus violated American laws, misguided course of action Both the Foreign Assistance which most likely will damage

Greece and undermine the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. "Give us 60 days to bring about a solution," he urged. The President said on Thursday the Republican party is in danger of extinction and asked the voters to save it on Election Day. "A catastrophic defeat as some forecasters are predicting for the Republican party could write the obituary of the GOP," Ford told 4,000 Republicans who each had $50 for tickets to a fund-raising dinner in mass Cobo Hall. "I plead with you to support a strong two-party system." Although he indicated he did not really believe the GOP would be wiped out at the polls Nov. 5, Ford expressed a deep concern about the growing trend of political independents in the nation.

"I respect and admire 44,000 votes four years ago and hours a day to carry the record back over the history of this country, I find that the periods of greatest political stability, progress and movement have come when we have two strong political parties," Ford said in his first political appearance in his home state since assuming the presidency. "If you have a multitude of political parties, you have chaos and you end up with that nation suffering with no progress. On the other hand, if you have one political party, we have the evils of dictatorship and all that goes with it." Ford went to Detroit to support the re-election bid of Republican Gov. William E. Milliken, who is locked in a close race with Democrat Sander M. Levin. Milliken beat Levin by only growing disenchantment with the traditional parties but did not contain the fervent appeal New York, California and Michigan. Ford's concern appeared to In his speech, Ford also urged Congress to put off a departure of Richard Nixon, "dangerous and misguided" Republican candidates are in halt in military aid to Turkey.

Unfavorable Goldberg Book...

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller today said he had nothing to do with an unfavorable book about Arthur Goldberg that came out during Goldberg's campaign to unseat him as governor of New York. But one of Rockefeller's brothers, Laurence Rockefeller, said $60,000 to help finance the book, published in 1970, came from him. Goldberg, former Supreme Court justice, former U.N. ambassador and former secretary of Labor, called it a dirty campaign trick and demanded an apology from the Rockefeller.

The House Judiciary Committee, which must pass on Rockefeller's nomination as vice president, is investigating the matter of the book, "Arthur J. Goldberg: The Old and New," by Victor Lasky, the New York Times said. In a statement, Rockefeller said, "I had heard of it at the time, but knew nothing about its preparation or financing. I really didn't pay any attention, because I never felt that such books coming out during campaigns cut much ice one way or the other." He said he learned only recently that his brother had invested about $60,000 in the company that published the book. Rockefeller said his brother never told him about it. "Had he only told me about it at the time, I would have been totally opposed to his participating in any form. As it was, in all the years since, he had never even mentioned the situation to me." In a statement to the Times Goldberg said: "I am shocked beyond measure that Governor Rockefeller and his brother would participate in such a dirty campaign trick. They owe me, my family and the American people a profound apology for financing a scandalous and libelous book or one who has served his country well. The explanation of Governor Rockefeller simply does not wash." In a related development, Rockefeller's press secretary Hugh Morrow confirmed today reports of another Rockefeller gift of more than $31,000 and a loan of $145,000 to Edward J. Logue, president of the New York State Urban Development Corp. Previously, Rockefeller has revealed gifts to former or present aides including Morrow, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and William J. Ronan, chairman of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey.

Another $176 Thousand in Gifts

President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller's press secretary says the former New York governor gave more than $176,000 in gifts and loans to Edward J. Logue, president of the state Urban Development Corp.

Rockefeller had previously acknowledged financial help to four past or present public officials while he was governor of New York: Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, former state Liquor Authority chief L.

Judson Morhouse; William J. Ronan, chairman of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey; and Hugh Morrow, Rockefeller's press secretary. Morrow said Thursday night that Logue had received $176,300 in financial help from Rockefeller.

Two days ago, Morrow had said that financial aid from Rockefeller while Rockefeller was governor went only to himself, Kissinger, Morhouse and Ronan.

But Morrow said Thursday night that Rockefeller gave Logue an outright cash gift of $31,300 in 1968 to "help him meet outstanding obligations in Massachusetts" so Logue could leave Boston to head the $2 billion state Urban Development Corp. at an annual salary of $65,000.

Rockefeller also lent Logue $145,000 on May 5, 1969, Morrow said. The Daily News in New York said the loan was made "presumably to cover the purchase of a cooperative" in Manhattan.

Morrow said Logue has paid back $45,000 of the loan.

Rockefeller had previously acknowledged making cash gifts and loans of $50,000 to Kissinger, $550,000 to Ronan, $86,000 to Morhouse and $100,000 to Morrow.

Former U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell also received a $6,000 painting from the former New York governor.

Boston Mayor Raps President

BOSTON (UPI) — Mayor Kevin H. White says he will not support any new school desegregation programs unless the federal government agrees to help the city carry them out.

Officials reported only six injuries and four arrests Thursday after 450 state and Metropolitan District Commission police were called in to keep things quiet in the city, which has been wracked for over a month by violence and protests against a federal school desegregation order.

In Washington, Attorney General William B. Saxbe said the Justice Department has moved to prosecute possible civil rights violations stemming from antirioting demonstrations.

At a news conference Thursday, the mayor criticized President Ford's statement that the federal court desegregation order "was not the best solution" to quality education in Boston.

In a harsh statement, White said, "President Ford's statement yesterday acts to impede the enforcement of the federal court order to desegregate the Boston Public School system and thus threatens the safety of our school children."

On Wednesday, the same day Ford made his statement, White's request for federal marshals to help Boston police enforce the ruling was rejected by U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity.

The judge told White to get the help of other police forces, and White arranged for the

Campaign Reform Bill Is Passed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress has passed a far-reaching campaign reform bill and sent it to President Ford.

The most revolutionary changes under the measure passed by a 364-24 vote in the House of Representatives Thursday would be in the financing of political campaigns for federal office, especially the 1976 presidential campaign.

Under current practices, candidates raise privately all the money they can and spend all they get.

But the campaign reform bill would allow the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates to receive no more than $20 million each and spend no more to get elected—wiping out the traditional GOP advantage of bigger war chests.

Similarly, candidates seeking their party nomination in the primaries could spend no more than $12 million, and $2 million of that must be used solely for fund-raising.

Presidential candidates in the general election may either raise their $20 million from small contributions or by taking the $20 million from the Treasury.

Central Broadway... The First Step

By WADE BURKHART

KINGSTON A delegation of the Central Businessmen's Association (CBA) met with a contingent of the city's aldermen and the city's planner Thursday night, and while they got a few concrete solutions to their complaints about the "deterioration" they say is afflicting Central Broadway, CBA President Sy Blas said he found the meeting "quite informative."

Blas said he wanted another one "sometime in the very near future."

"I don't say we accomplished too much," said Blas after the meeting, "but at least we broke the ice."

The members of the CBA delegation feel their area has been slighted by the city, especially in view of the Urban Renewal activity uptown and downtown but not in the middle.

"I think it's about time we were given an equal share of this city," said Blas.

Under the new Community Development Act, Kingston will be getting $5.4 million in federal aid over the next five years with a three-year plan required from the city, as well as annual reapplication according to City Planner Robert Pritchard.

Some of this money may go to Central Broadway, if only to full identify the problem. Pritchard said after Thursday night's meeting that one of the many things he could recommend to the Common Council for adoption in the city's three-year plan is a comprehensive study of the Central Broadway area by outside consultants.

At the present time, said Pritchard, "What I have to do is get people to do the pieces for me." He has essentially a one-man staff — himself — recently augmented by an addition via Manpower which he has working on a mass transit study.

According to what he told the CBA, to attack any planning problem like Central Broadway, all the properties have to be meeting entirely empty handed. Clifford G. Sinsabaugh (D-10th protection for their area, and inventoried and their uses. It was mentioned that some Ward), who said after a recent were counseled to "keep determined, a land use plan and additional lighting on the streets drive through town in which he hammering away" until they traffic circulation plan must be just off Broadway would be noted 17 red flags on parking got the police protection they drawn up, and plans for implementation be made.

The State Department of Transportation, late last week, informed Pritchard that they were going to look at Kingston and environs for designation as a Federal Aid Urban System, doing major improvements on the area's streets with federal funds. Pritchard said Central Broadway could receive some help from that. As for the beginning of the land use plan, the property inventory, Pritchard said the county's tax map, now in the works, could help.

The CBA did not come away from the Thursday night meeting heartily supported by Alderman DeCicco, (D-9th Ward) who headed the contingent of three hours, and didn't get a ticket either. Aldermen as chairman of the Common Council's Central Broadway Committee, said he "Evidently," said Sinsabaugh, "the police department isn't cooperating with anybody."

Minority Leader Brian Smith (R-3rd Ward) urged the CBA to send a letter of complaint about the poor police work to the police department, with a copy to the Common Council's Traffic Committee, so that it could be brought up at the next Common Council meeting. The businessmen also cited a meeting had helped, and that they considered a lack of police

'Pool Your Resources,' School Boards Told

By JON POWERS

ROSENDALE Caught between increasingly militant and tightly organized teachers associations demanding higher salaries and more attractive benefits — and overburdened and disenchanted taxpayers who want spending kept to a minimum — school boards throughout New York State may be well advised to pool their resources to achieve some degree of consistency and unanimity in contract negotiations.

That, at least, was the message brought to Thursday's meeting of the Ulster County School Boards Association by Dutchess County attorney John Donahue, the legal representative of some 20 school districts in the state.

Donahue asserted that school boards must consolidate their bargaining activities — if not on a statewide basis, then at least locally or regionally — or fall prey to the sophisticated bargaining prowess of tightly-knit teachers' unions.

"After five years (since the inception of the Taylor Law), school boards have failed to organize, failed to provide support and help that the teachers provide each other," said Donahue, "if we don't consolidate, we're going to continue to end up on the wrong end of the whipsaw in future years."

According to Donahue, a united front by school boards could help to stem the increasingly lucrative settlements that have been granted teachers in recent years. "We have a responsibility to defend the electorate," he said, "even more of a responsibility than the state."

Donahue conceded, however, that there may well be drawbacks to regionalized negotiating procedures. In addition to sacrificing some local control over the bargaining process, he admitted that each and every school district is subject to different circumstances that can only be handled on an individual basis.

Thursday's meeting, held at the Williams Lake Hotel in Rosendale, dealt specifically with the Taylor Law and the impact that recent changes may have on the bargaining process.

Irwin Kelly, a member of the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB), explained the various steps in the bargaining process that occur after an impasse has been declared. Of special significance, he pointed out, is the "conciliation process" that is now available after the issuance of the fact-finder's report. Conciliation may help, he said, to achieve an equitable bilateral agreement that would avoid any statutory settlement decreed by a school board.

Kelly also noted that binding arbitration — now being tried on an experimental basis by uniformed services in the state — may be added to the post-impasse process between teachers and school districts. "The legislature may seriously consider it," he said, "it's an area that school board members should keep an eye on."

Marvin Niese, representing the New York State School Boards Association, spoke briefly on the fiscal difficulties that can arise when both sides are still at impasse when classes begin in September. He urged the local school board members to negotiate in good faith but, if necessary, to declare an impasse if agreement hasn't been reached by March 3, (120 days before the end of the fiscal year) to avoid budgetary complications.

Prior to Thursday's program, Thomas Reynolds was reelected president of the association; Mrs. Ann Coler was elected vice-president and Frank A. Hamilton was reelected executive secretary-treasurer. The West Park Union Free School District, formerly the Mother Cabrini School, was admitted as a new member of the association.

Ouster Demand

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — State Education Commissioner Ewald B. Nyquist has been asked to depose three members of the Poughkeepsie School Board.

A citizens group Thursday filed a complaint with Nyquist seeking the ouster of board members William Pappas, Martin Kurkhill and Louis Kustas, charging malfeasance in office.

The "Committee for Better Education" presented its papers to Education Department Counsel Robert Stone. Under ordinary procedures, Nyquist would hold a hearing on the request and then announce his decision.

The group accused Pappas of conducting part-time testing programs in the city's schools, causing "financial loss to the school district and its residents."

They also alleged Pappas was no longer a resident of the district and now had his official residence in New Jersey. Kurkhill, the group said, allegedly had a conflict of interest in the sale of surplus property.

In Kustas' case, the group alleged he also participated in conflict of interest cases.

Motions Filed in Attica Case

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — A Buffalo attorney filed motions asking that all files of the special Attica prosecutor be impounded was filed in U.S. District Court here Thursday by attorneys for several of the Attica prison riot defendants.

Attorneys for the Attica Brothers Legal Defense (ABLD), which represents many of the 57 persons still facing charges in connection with the rebellion, charged that mishandling of evidence in the first Attica trial made impoundment necessary.

"We're asking the federal government to impound whatever evidence exists today, to inventory it and make sure the shredded notes taken during the initial "thousands of interviews with prisoners and state employees who were at Attica during the rebellion."

He said all three major prosecution witnesses in the Smith case had changed their stories substantially since testifying before the special Wyoming County grand jury which returned indictments of 62 current and former inmates in connection with the 1971 riot.

"The statements will be in variance with statements made before the grand jury during other trials, too. We're asking the federal court to protect these defendants from any further tampering of evidence by the prosecution," Cunningham said.

He said the suppression of evidence—either through actual destruction or misplacement—was "the same kind of misconduct and bad faith on the part of prosecutors we've seen again and again in political trials. It happened as soon as they started a trial here."

John Hill, a former Attica inmate charged with killing a guard during the uprising, said "the corruption that existed on the part of the prosecution" made it necessary for Bayger to throw out Smith's case. "If the case had gone to the jury, it would have exposed that corruption."

"We will be able to show the people of the United States that these indictments are nothing but a frame-up to cover up for the bloodbath ordered by (then Gov. Nelson) Rockefeller at Attica," Hill said.

Cunningham said he would not be surprised if the prosecution appealed Bayger's decision in the Smith case because "they'll do anything to harass the Attica defendants."

"But I think an appeal would be frivolous. If they would appeal, I don't think they would get anywhere," he said.

New Post for Willowbrook Director

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The director of the controversial Willowbrook State School on Staten Island has been placed in a different position in a different school.

Dr. Alan D. Miller, state commissioner of Mental Hygiene, said Thursday he has removed Dr. Miodrag Ristich from his post as director of Willowbrook, where he had worked for the past two years.

Miller said in a statement the action to transfer Ristich, who had been under fire at Willowbrook, came after "consultation" with Gov. Malcolm Wilson.

He said James A. Forde, director of the department's Mid-Hudson Regional office, would head a team of "senior officials" from the department in running Willowbrook for the next three months.

Ristich, Miller said, was being assigned to the Institute for Basic Research on Mental Retardation, also on Staten Island, where he will administer a federally-funded research project.

Ristich, 36, will continue at his present salary of $43,000 a year.

There have been allegations of mistreatment of patients and inadequate care for the patients. State Sen. Frank Padavan, R-Queens, alleged that crimes such as rape, robberies and assaults had increased in 1973.

Commenting on the latest development, Miller said, "While much work remains to be done, the programs and conditions at Willowbrook are far better today than they were when Dr. Ristich took on the extremely difficult task of director two years ago."

The commissioner said he knew of "no task that is more difficult, challenging or draining than transforming a large, basically custodial institution for the mentally retarded into a program that provides humane safe and effective care. Dr. Ristich has made a significant start in that direction and for that accomplishment he is to be commended and thanked."

Miller said "a change in administration will help accelerate further improvements."

Forde, a former associate commissioner for executive coordination, will serve as acting director at Willowbrook.

Miller said the department had hired a management consulting team, Griffenhagen-Kroeger, to assist Forde and his new staff in carrying out their management responsibilities.

The firm is now completing a three-month study on the top management needs in the department.

A Devastating Autumn Tornado

By United Press International

A rare autumn tornado cut a 200-mile swath through a small Indian village in New Mexico Thursday, killing an infant girl, demolishing house trailers and unroofing houses.

Eight persons were injured and three mobile homes were destroyed by the twister.

Fanny Sandoval said the tornado hit Canoncity, N.M., "like an explosion" and ripped the roof off her house.

"I did not see the tornado, but the wind came over us like an explosion," she said. "It all happened so quickly."

"We were running around, not knowing what to do. Then suddenly the roof came off and the wind scattered our things all over the place."

After the twister passed, Miss Sandoval went outside and found the body of 2-week-old Charlotte Blake lying in some debris. The dead child was in one of the mobile homes that was destroyed.

Joe Riley, a school teacher, said the tornado was "like a giant tumbled rolling down a hill."

Gerrie Blake, 20, and Tommy Guerrero, 20, were hospitalized in fair condition in Albuquerque. Six other persons, including three children, were treated and released.

Tornadoes "are extremely rare anywhere west of the Rio Grande," said National Weather Service forecaster Frank Eldred in Albuquerque. "Tornadoes are exceptionally rare for this area and especially for this time of year. Whenever they occur, they usually come in the spring months."

A cold front brought showers and thundershowers into the central Plains and upper Mississippi Valley early today and more scattered showers dampened New Mexico and the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles.

More showers persisted in the northern Rockies.

Fog and a few showers plagued the coastal Pacific Northwest. In California and the lower Plateau, skies were clear.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 78 at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., to 28 at Houlton, Maine.

Another Daley Aide Guilty

CHICAGO (UPI) — For the second time in as many days, "the jury has spoken" and another of Mayor Richard J. Daley's powerful allies is facing imprisonment.

A U.S. District Court jury Thursday found Alderman Paul T. Wigoda guilty of income tax fraud for failing to report an alleged $50,000 bribe for using his influence to send a zoning change through the City Council.

That verdict followed by only 24 hours the verdict of another federal court jury finding Alderman Thomas E. Keane—the city's No. 2 Democrat and Daley's City Council floor leader—guilty of 17 counts of mail fraud and one count of conspiracy.

Daley, confronted by reporters outside his City Hall offices, said the convictions of Keane and Wigoda were "unfortunate" but would have no bearing on his decision on whether to seek re-election to a sixth term in 1975.

Wigoda was found guilty by a jury of six men and five women—one juror short. The 12th juror had been dismissed for oversleeping during the trial.

Wigoda was found guilty of failing to report on his 1969 income tax return a $50,000 payoff the government said he received for his efforts to push through a measure to rezone the old Edgewater Golf Course for residential construction.

Keane had been found guilty of mail fraud and conspiracy for secretly buying up tax delinquent land, influencing the City Council to grant favorable tax settlements on the land, then using his political influence to get city agencies—including the Chicago Housing Authority—to buy some of it.

Wigoda faces a maximum of three years in prison and Keane faces up to 90 years' imprisonment.

National Emergencies Bill

The ludicrous spectacle of the nation still technically involved in a state of emergency declared at the time of the Great Depression 40 years ago is about to be ended by congressional action. Three other national emergencies — arising from the Korean War, the national strike in 1970 and a 1971 world monetary crisis — also are marked "finis" in a bill just passed by the Senate and sent to the House.

Ludicrous or not, the prolongation of these emergencies also contained the seeds of disaster. For the hundreds of restrictive measures which could be invoked by a President at any time during the official life of an emergency were an invitation to gross abuse of presidential power. No President took advantage of this, but the danger is there — the danger that a demagogue might all but abrogate constitutional government under the guise of using emergency powers.

Recognition of this danger has grown rapidly under the stimulus of events in the past couple of years. Drafting of the present legislation was begun last year by a bipartisan Senate study committee. President Ford has given the bill his support. Quick approval can be expected in the House.

There is more to the measure than simply termination of the hangover emergencies; it contains provisions which will prevent such a situation's arising again. Under terms of this bill Congress will review an emergency every six months after it has been declared, and decide when to terminate it. This is another welcome step toward restoring a sensible balance between executive and legislative authority.

New Concerns About Pot

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is required by law to report annually to Congress on drug abuse. Last year's report said among other things that, whereas infrequent smoking of marijuana was not thought to be harmful, little is known about possible hazards in long-term use of this drug.

The report now being prepared for transmittal to Congress in January shifts the balance toward suggesting that there is greater cause for concern than had been thought. A new study conducted under auspices of the National Institute of Drug Abuse raises the possibility that marijuana may have a number of harmful effects, among them lowered resistance to disease, and defects in babies born to users of the drug.

These are preliminary findings based on data from studies made during the past two years; no conclusions can yet be drawn. Comments by Dr. William Pollin, the Institute's research director, should nevertheless be taken as a warning signal by those who freely use marijuana and maintain that it is harmless.

Dr. Pollin is careful to note that there is as yet no clinical evidence confirming researchers' suspicions. But "pre-clinical studies," he said, "have described possible adverse experiences," and this is significant because the new studies "have raised questions which before have not been a matter of concern." That should have a cautionary effect on young people who think smoking pot is a great way to enhance their lifestyle.

Out Goes the Interlock

A sort of "freedom of injury" bill has been agreed to by Senate-House conferees. They approved ending the mandatory auto interlock system which makes it necessary to fasten seatbelts before a car can be started. This will permit motorists to exercise their freedom to risk their lives without seatbelts.

The change was made in response to many complaints from people who find it inconvenient, or an affront to their independence, or something, to have to buckle up before taking off. Henceforth if the owner of a new car chooses he will be able to hop in and zoom off without suffering the buckle-up nuisance—but also, of course, without having seatbelt protection in the event of a crash.

Happily, this obnoxious little fly comes bathed in a superior grade of ointment. The congressmen also authorized the transportation secretary to order auto makers to install protective air bags or other passive-restraint devices. This means that, except for those foolish enough to deactivate the air bags, there will be automatic crash protection for drivers and front seat passengers.

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — From classified documents and dozens of interviews, we have now learned that Henry Kissinger guided President Nixon in January, 1970, along a tightrope between black and white Africa, with a secret tilt toward the white supremacist nations.

It was Kissinger's first big "tilt." The Kissinger proposals were submitted to the former President as part of a massive review of U.S. policy toward southern Africa, our sources say. Prepared by Kissinger's National Security Council staff and stamped SECRET on every page, the review is known formally as "National Security Study Memorandum 39." Its existence has been previously reported, but we have obtained a copy.

NSSM 39 offered five "options" for dealing with the explosive black-white confrontation in southern Africa. Supposedly, it was left to Nixon to choose the final policy. To this day, only a handful of Kissinger's closest associates know that he personally recommended the course he thought should be pursued.

Without exception, Nixon accepted Kissinger's recommendations. Here's what Kissinger proposed and Nixon adopted:

— As a "general posture," Kissinger called for a "balancing" act in southern Africa: he wanted to "straddle" the black-white issue. With an emphasis on keeping it "quiet," he urged a "partial relaxation" of the chill toward the white regimes and an accompanying "modest" increase of aid to the black states. His objective, inside sources told his associate Joe Spear, was to persuade the blacks that the United States sympathized with them while fostering a secret kinship with the whites.

— Kissinger advocated a slight relaxation of the stern U.S. posture toward white-ruled Rhodesia, an outlaw nation cut off diplomatically from the rest of the world. United Nations sanctions against Rhodesia were penalizing American firms, Kissinger contended, because other nations ignored them. He suggested, therefore that the United States should prepare plans to "loosen" enforcement of economic sanctions.

— Kissinger also wanted the United States to retain its consular office in Salisbury, Rhodesia. This was opposed by William Rogers, then Secretary of State, who argued strenuously that the office should be closed. But Kissinger's wishes prevailed until the British, who had accredited the consulate, demanded that it be shut-down.

— The United States should not take sides, Kissinger suggested, in the Portuguese colonial wars. But he urged a "quiet loosening" of the American arms embargo against Portugal's African colonies. The new policy, Kissinger advised Nixon, should permit the shipment to the Portuguese of "nonlethal" equipment with "dual" civilian and military use.

Kissinger also recommended that the arms embargo against South Africa should be "relaxed" to permit the sale of nonlethal equipment "intended" for civilian use. The United States should also increase "military contacts" with South Africa, Kissinger advised, as long as it could be done "inconspicuously."

The delicate question of South Africa's control over South West Africa, with its overwhelming black population, should be avoided if at all possible, Kissinger pleaded. It should not be permitted, he argued, to become an issue in Washington's "bilateral relations" with South Africa.

— As a sop to the black nations of southern Africa, Kissinger proposed a modest increase in foreign aid of about $5 million.

— Trade between the United States and the white regimes should be encouraged, Kissinger advocated. But he stressed again that it should be done quietly. The services of the Export-Import Bank, he added, should be extended to South Africa and the Portuguese colonies.

Kissinger's recommendations were based largely upon "Option 2" in the NSSM 39 policy review. As spelled out in the secret document, this option called for "broader association with both black and white states" on the "premise" that "the whites are here to stay and the only way that constructive change can come about is through them."

Under Option 2, the United States would "maintain public opposition to racial repression but relax political isolation and economic restrictions on the white states." Among the "operational examples" listed under Option 2 are these:

— "Enforce arms embargo against South Africa but with liberal treatment of equipment which could serve either military or civilian purposes."

— "Remove constraints on EXIM. Bank facilities for South Africa; actively encourage U.S. exports and facilitate U.S. investments."

— "Conduct selected exchange programs with South Africa in all categories, including military"

— "On Rhodesia, retain consulate; gradually relax sanctions (e.g. hardship exemptions for chrome) and consider eventual recognition."

— "Establish flexible aid programs in the black states of the region; respond to reasonable requests for purchase of nonsophisticated arms."

This was the course that Kissinger chose and that Nixon followed.

Perils of a War Hero

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

MITCHELL, S.D. — The overriding problem for Republican Senate candidate Leo Thorsness, awarded the Medal of Honor for heroism after six years in a North Vietnamese prisoner-of-war camp, was inescapably etched in a question-and-answer session at Dakota Wesleyan University.

After gracefully fielding an hour's worth of sometimes hostile questions from students at Sen. George McGovern's alma mater, he was asked by the college president to express his position on federal aid to education. With the candor that has made him the despair of his political handlers, Thorsness replied that "education and federal tax aid are two issues I haven't gone into in much depth."

By making just such frank declarations, lean, handsome former Col. Thorsness is sending this message to the voters of South Dakota: The presumed political asset of six years in a Communist POW camp does not outweigh the liabilities of a political neophyte running against a famous, if somewhat scarred, political veteran.

But there is a deeper problem for the 43-year-old Thorsness that reveals a grim portrait of the condition of American politics among youthful voters which may extend far beyond this prairie state: the very fact that Thorsness emerged a hero from the nation's most hated war has contaminated him among many college students.

Questions asked here at Dakota Wesleyan were tinged with hostility, and three students later told us privately that his status as a war hero hurt him politically.

This antagonism, moreover, is enhanced among the students we talked to by his outspoken conservatism. He is preaching toughly conservative politics: return to the death penalty; no federal control over land-use; consideration for changing the present graduated income tax to a straight income tax rate for everyone; opposition to national health insurance unless run by private insurance companies.

Students aside, the appeal of such positions seems diminished in this Republican state of ranchers, cattlemen and small shopkeepers by despair over the economy. In a healthy economy, Thorsness' espousal of traditional prairie virtues, combined with his natural appeal to South Dakota's disproportionately high number of World War II and Korean war veterans, should have made him an excellent candidate to foil McGovern's third-term bid — a long-term Republican project nationally.

That was the prospect back in Washington, where Thorsness spent a week in mid-summer getting briefed on national issues and campaign techniques.

Indeed, the Republican senatorial campaign committee, headed by Sen. William Brock of Tennessee, has invested $60,000 in Thorsness, more by far than in any other nonincumbent Republican candidate. Brock dispatched his top administrative aide here at least twice last summer after Thorsness won the Republican primary election. He also helped recruit Harry Bannister, a professional campaign strategist from Arizona, to mastermind the anti-McGovern campaign.

But McGovern, who lost even South Dakota to Richard Nixon in his calamitous presidential campaign, has successfully evolved from the 1972 far-out political ideologue of the left to Mr. Experience of 1974. At the same time he is musing the issues that cost him dearly two years ago.

A supporter of amnesty for Vietnam draft-dodgers during his ill-fated 1972 campaign, McGovern publicly accepted President Ford's conditional amnesty plan three weeks ago. He called it a "practical compromise . . . that opens the door to reconciliation and healing of the wounds opened by the war."

If that seems an abrupt change from 1972, three months earlier McGovern went further. He told the state Veterans of Foreign Wars that Nixon had every right "to take the stand and establish the policy" of total opposition to any form of amnesty. Amnesty, he said, is clearly a "prerogative of the President." As a Senate candidate, McGovern now ignores the issue.

Campaigning on the chilly, windswept main street of Mitchell during the Corn Palace Pageant last week, McGovern was slapped on the back and poked in the ribs by hometown friends.

A dozen miles east, on his small and failing cattle-feeding ranch, John Muilenburg, a lifelong Republican, told us of the desperate plight of cattlemen everywhere today and the threat of financial collapse. "I didn't like McGovern going down South and marching with all those negroes," he said, "but he's a damn honest man and I'm voting for him."

To beat McGovern, Thorsness must change that perception, but so far his attack has centered on one major issue: the $1 million McGovern has already spent to be reelected and the transfer to his Senate campaign of money originally raised for his presidential campaign. That just doesn't interest voters worried about next week's paycheck.

Valentino and the Flappers

Several readers have asked if I know anything of Rudolph Valentino. Their asthmatic grandmothers, it seems, wheeze at the mention of his name. Permit me to confess that I was a growing boy when the great lover of the screen died at Polyclinic Hospital in New York.

The date was August 23, 1926. Valentino was an unlettered Italian youngster who came to America to make his fortune. He thought it could be done waiting on tables and picking up dime tips. He moved from that to picking up dames.

Women kept "discovering" Valentino and telling him that he would be a great lover in the silent movies. Mostly, they were ladies with diamond-studded lipstick and candid how-about-it eyes.

In time, the peasant boy began to believe the pillow talk, and he went west to make his fortune. At the time, the best Hollywood could do in the way of hot lovers were two characters named Francis X. Bushman and Jack Mulhall.

Both were gentlemanly lovers, and scores of millions of young flappers with rolled-down stockings were throwing up in the movies as the hero kissed the heroine on the forehead and shed a tear.

Hollywood learned that Rudolph Valentino had several things going for him. He had a smooth Latin face. He had muscles which had a sinuous habit of rippling when he wore a loose white silk shirt open to the navel. He had two deadly glances — one with the lids half down, the other wide open with flaming anger.

In love scenes, he sneered at women who resisted him with their finger nails, and bent them backward as he kissed them hard with their heads close to the floor. He wasn't much as an actor. His voice was reminiscent of a Neapolitan iceman, but who could hear him in a silent movie?

He made his fortune. They tried him in a couple of motion pictures in dinner jackets, but something was lacking. The studio had an old bomb on the shelf called "The Sheik," so they put him in it. He wore a silk swami headgear, Moslem cape and baggy knickers and something new called a slave bracelet. Then they put him in a tent on a sand dune behind Santa Monica and said, "GO!"

He went. He captured pale blonde American women and carried them kicking and screaming into his tent. He sneered as he tossed them onto piles of cushions. It was at this point that the flappers swallowed their gum, sighed, moaned and fainted right in the movie house.

H.L. Mencken said he was "catnip to women," a poverty-stricken description. He . . . was . . . the . . . only . . . MAN . . . in . . . the . . . world. He made sinners of saints. He wrecked marriages. Girls called their boyfriends "Sheik."

Valentino is the only man to receive 100,000 obscene letters from women. He married a movie actress, Jean Acker. Across the nation, girls stuck their heads in ovens and turned on the gas.

In his films, he was on a white stallion atop a sand dune, the cape whipping in the desert breeze. He made millions and more millions. Fan magazines doubled their circulation by announcing: "The True Story of Valentino As a Lover." To understate it, he was sensational.

Privately, Rudolph Valentino made one big mistake. He learned to read in English. He read story after story about what a great lover he was. By the time he got to Pina Negri, a sexy star who slinked rather than walked, Rudy was a dead pigeon. Every time he nipped at her throat he would remember those stories, have a sigh, and say, "Whaddya say we go out and play a little bocci?"

He made a visit to New York and hid in a sumptuous suite of rooms so that he wouldn't have to walk on the women lying in the corridor. He had a pain in the abdomen. "Gas," he said. "Bad gas."

His appendix burst. When Valentino was carried into Polyclinic, women knelt in the street, praying. Newspapers issued extra editions with the latest bulletins. He died — who knows? — maybe in self-defense.

He was placed in a solid silver and bronze coffin and laid in state at Campbell's Funeral Parlor. Police on horses tried to keep the women back. They wept. They snarled. They fought. They tore clothes from each other's backs. Finally, they pushed the police through a plate glass window.

Seventy-five women were taken to hospitals. Across the nation, other women joined him in death. A lady wrote to the Daily Mirror: "May I, a three-score-and-ten grandmother tell you of my pity that one who so ably supplied to romance-starved women the beautiful side of life should be taken from us so young, so soon."

If your grandmother was a flaming flapper, she'll remember. Oh yes, she'll remember. . .

Hinchey Gives Plan to Combat Mortgage Slump

SAUGERTIES Providing tax incentives for savings. A program to counteract the effects of inflation and tight money on the state's mortgage and home building industry was released today by Maurice Hinchey, Democrat-Liberal candidate for Ulster County's 101st Assembly seat.

The Hinchey plan, designed to relieve the worst housing and mortgage slump on record, calls for: requiring that public funds be deposited in interest bearing accounts in thrift institutions reducing interest rates on home mortgages.

"As of June 30, 1973 more than $4 billion in public funds were on deposit in non-interest bearing accounts in the commercial banks of this state. This money, in effect deposited by New York State taxpayers, is not earning one cent of interest. The State Legislature should authorize that this huge sum be deposited in interest bearing accounts in the state's thrift institutions. By doing so, the amount of available mortgage money would be greatly increased and taxpayers would receive a return in interest on the money held by their governments," Hinchey said.

In March of 1973, Hinchey called attention to more than $400,000 of Ulster County funds deposited in non-interest bearing accounts. At that time he quoted an audit of County fiscal affairs performed by the State Department of Audit and Control.

The second half of the and thereby help to combat certificates of deposit and dealt a severe blow to the proposal released today by Hinchey would provide tax incentives for savings. "I am proposing that we support legislation authorizing a $200 tax exemption on interest earned on money deposited in savings and loan associations in New York State. An exemption of $400 could be provided in the case of a husband and wife filing a joint return. By doing so we would encourage savings, the higher returns offered by

McHugh cited aid to disadvantaged and handicapped children as areas that are often neglected and said that we must also pay more attention to teaching basic skills such as reading and to vocational rehabilitation.

For the past two years Kopf has been a member of the Woodstock Board of Assessment Review. He has also done work with the Kingston Exchange Club's junior football program.

Concerning the Woodstock sewerage problem, Kopf said the current proposal appears to be the appropriate long-term

Regarding real property tax assessment he said the inequities in real property tax assessment can only be resolved by the town board and the town assessor developing and maintaining a detailed assessment plan which describes residential, commercial and vacant land assessments rationale and procedures.

He said the key to the implementation of such a plan is to ensure effective communication with understanding of the plan with Woodstock property owners. Also demonstrate the control mechanisms that ensure that the individual categories of property owners are assessed in the same way at the same time.

Endorsement for Candidate Angell

POUGHKEEPSIE "A new mood of voter Nick Angell, Democratic candidate in the 25th Congressional District, was overwhelmingly endorsed as the choice of the New York State AFL-CIO on Saturday, Oct. 5 during the annual convention of the 2 million member labor federation held last week at the Concord Hotel in Kiamasha Lake.

In response to the news of the AFL-CIO's full fledged support of his candidacy in the race against incumbent Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. Angell announced he was "proud to receive this endorsement which is crucial to my campaign."

"Most of us are fed up with shouldering the brunt of high corporate profits and tax loopholes for the wealthy and are recognizing that the power of the vote is the only way to gain relief from an unfair share of the inflation burden."

Philatelic Annual Event

CLINTON CORNERS

This year, as in previous years, the Franklin D. Roosevelt Philatelic Society of Hyde Park, is publicizing and promoting the observance of International Letter Writing Week.

The Philatelic Journalist supports this annual event, in connection with the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

People throughout the U.S. are encouraged to write to their friends in foreign countries and in so doing help bring about a better understanding of each other.

It is hoped that a wider exchange of letters with men, women and youngsters of other countries, of other continents, of different races, different colors, various religious and political beliefs, will bring people closer together.

Next to personal acquaintanceship, writing letters is a good way to bring this about, the Philatelic Journal feels.

The Society, furthermore, believes that in promoting the suggestion of having more and more Americans engage in a continuous correspondence of people of other nations, it also is promoting international peace. Being a philatelic society, an association of stamp collectors, members feel that stamp collecting and trading stamps may be an excellent way of maintaining such correspondence.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced slightly in continued active trading today with profit taking reining in the sharp advance of the past two days.

The 10:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up .39 at 648.47, while gainers held a more pronounced 5-to-3 edge on losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said some profit-taking was to be expected after the 63-point rise in the Dow since the start of the week.

The market appeared to draw some support from a prediction by New York's First National City Bank that the rate of inflation would slow markedly next year to the 5 to 6 per cent range.

Quotations by Loeb, Rhea and Co., members of New York Stock Exchange and American Stock Exchange, Kingston, N. Y. Joseph Garvill, resident manager Phone 331-1900.

If She Can't Have Grass, She'll Hit the Bottle

© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune
DEAR ABBY: I was busted for possession of marijuana two weeks ago. I am a married woman—19, and have a 14-month-old son.
Everyone has something he calls his own thing, and my own thing is relaxing with grass now and then. When the police came to my door, they deprived me of one of my civil rights by not letting me read the search warrant before they entered my home.
What can I do about this? So many people have been busted the same way. We are sick of the way the police push people around.

If I can't smoke grass in the privacy of my own home, then I guess I'll become an alcoholic.
BUSTED IN L.A. DEAR ABBY: Both possession and sale of marijuana are unlawful, and in narcotics cases, search warrants cannot be read at the door because while the officers are waiting outside, someone inside (an accomplice, possibly) can destroy the evidence. So the law enforcers must enter first, and then the warrant is available for reading.
The people, through the democratic process, write the laws, and the police only enforce them. However, your threat to turn to alcohol if you can't have "grass" shows a dependency on some kind of mood-changing drug, which should concern you at least as much as being deprived of your civil rights.

DEAR ABBY: You said in your column that there was nothing sadder than seeing children being raised by children.
Well, I disagree with you. It's a lot sadder to see children being raised by old

Dear Abby

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

people in their late 30s and 40s. They have nothing in common.
I am 16, and have a child nearly a year old and there is nothing "sad" about the way my son is being raised. I think it's a break for a kid to have young parents so they can grow up together.

DEAR MOTHER: If you are sufficiently mature to raise a child at 16 you are exceptional.
"Growing up" together is lovely theory, but unless the parents are mature (and maturity doesn't automatically come with years) they'd better do a lot of praying.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but here I am. Will you please let doctors, nurses, aides and all hospital personnel know that when someone who works with them is hospitalized that person deserves the same consideration about visiting hours as anyone else in that hospital?
I was hospitalized with a serious injury two months ago, and during my stay at the hospital, even though there was a big sign on my door which read: "POSITIVELY NO VISITORS: DOCTOR'S ORDERS," I was pestered to death by co-workers who felt I needed a little cheering up.

Nurses, doctors, aides, and people from the hospital office came to see me. Most of them stayed for only ten minutes, but multiply that by 50 every day and you'll have some idea of how exhausted I was.
I finally had to leave the hospital to get some rest. I love my co-workers, but they almost killed me with kindness.
Please, Abby, put this in your column. I hope it goes up on hospital bulletin boards all over the country.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE DEAR FLO. Here's your letter. I hope it works.
Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.
For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Tiny Tips
Washing Parfait Glasses
A bottle brush is useful in washing parfait glasses.
A wire pastry blender is indispensable in making pie dough. It may also be used for mincing hard-cooked eggs and crushing berries.

Use White Bread
When a recipe calls for "bread," use white bread, except in the case of sandwiches. For those you may choose the variety of bread you prefer. Cucumber sandwiches, however, are traditionally made with white bread.

Ullman-Terwilliger Wedding Is Held

Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Buckley of City View Terrace, Kingston, announce the marriage of her daughter, Miss Jacqueline F. Ullman, to Paul E. Terwilliger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Terwilliger, 1142 Dogwood Street, Kingston.

The ceremony was performed Saturday, September 21, 1 p.m. in Fair Street Reformed Church. The Rev. Randall Bosch officiated.

Organist was Gloria-Jean Sparks.
The bride was given in marriage by her step-father. She wore a gown of silk organza styled with a fitted Empire bodice, high neckline and long puffed sleeves, all trimmed with Venice lace. Her floor length veil was circled with matching lace and was secured by a Juliet cap. She carried a bouquet of pompons, carnations, chrysanthemums and roses.

Miss Marijane Reinhard of Abbey Street, as maid of honor, chose an apricot floral embossed gown with white background over nile silk lining. Designed in Empire lines, tiers of ruffles accented the V neckline, short puffed sleeves and hemline of the skirt. She wore a white picture hat with matching ribbon and carried a fireside basket of peach and nile colored pompons. Bridesmaids were Terri Conti of Dogwood Street, Kingston and Eleanor Ullman, sister of the bride. They wore gowns and hats identical in styling to the maid of honor's. They carried similar bouquets.

Robert Terwilliger was best man for his brother. Ushers were John and David Terwilliger, also brothers of the bridegroom.

A reception was given at Holiday Inn.
The bride and bridegroom were graduated from Kingston High School, class of 1972, and from SUNY at Cobleskill this year. Mr. Terwilliger is employed at Smith-Corona in Cortland as a junior systems analyst. They will make their home at Sherbrook Apartments, Cortland.

Doing the Right Thing

Dear Mrs. Post: When an elopement is made known, is it permissible for the family and friends to give gifts? It is always hard to set up housekeeping, and I think that the hard feelings over the secrecy and so on should be forgiven and forgotten as soon as possible.

Dear Alice: You're right! Anything that can be done to improve an unhappy situation is for the best. As soon as the word is out, family members and friends should feel free to send gifts, just as they would to any new couple.

Dear Mrs. Post: How long should you wait before you repay a dinner hostess with a return invitation? We had dinner with friends in April.

Dear Mrs. Hollis: You should return a dinner invitation BEFORE a second is apt to be issued. In this case, ask your friends over SHORTLY after their next party. You don't have to have a barbecue — ask them for dinner and have it indoors or out, depending on the weather that particular day.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a friend who signs her letters Jack, Holly and Carol — first her husband's name, then her's, and that of their two-year-old child last. I have never seen this before and wonder what you think about it.

Mildred Peterson
Dear Mrs. Peterson: When you write a letter you should sign it with your own name. Only when a couple receives a gift meant for both of them may the person writing the thank-you sign both names. An ordinary letter is quite different. The person writing is correct in including her husband by referring to him in the text, but she should not put another's name to her own thoughts.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK BUONO JR. of Saugerties observed their 25th wedding anniversary recently with a dinner-party at Buono's Restaurant. The occasion was hosted by their children, Gregory and Juliana, who reside at home. Married September 11, 1949 in St. Joseph's Church, Glasco, they had been attended by Mr. and Mrs. Sal Mauro Jr. Mr. Buono is employed by Ferroxcube, Mt. Marion. (Glennalde photo)

Plantings will start in the Spring.

The library is due for completion about January 1 but due to the increase in building costs, funds for landscaping were deleted. The club in assuming this project will be contributing to beautifying the community.

PAN DE MUERTOS, "bread of the dead" dominates Mexican festival displays from October 15 through November 2. Hauntingly flavored by anise and orange peel, it makes an appropriate dessert during Halloween season.

Pan De Muertos

Comes November and our neighbors across the border celebrate a custom of offerings to the dead. Based on foods favored by departed loved ones the offerings resemble symbols of Halloween: skulls, cross bones, skeletons and fanciful creations suggesting an ascension to heaven.

From October 15 through November 2 the foods decorate tables and altars. Pan De Muertos, "bread of the dead" dominates the festival displays. It's a light sweet bread hauntingly flavored with anise, orange peel and an orange glaze. Shape of the bread suggests a ladder to ease the spirits ascension to heaven. A flock of birds, sculptured from the bread dough, decorate the top of the loaf heralding arrival of the spirits. It makes an appropriate bread for brunch or dessert during the Halloween season.

Using the Rapidmix method of bread making, Pan De Muertos is easy to bake at home. The step of first dissolving yeast in warm water is eliminated, because modern active dry yeast is treated as one of the dry ingredients. Milk and water are heated to very warm (120 degrees F.-130 degrees F.), then added to some of the dry ingredients. An electric mixer is used during the first stage of beating. This quickly begins the development of gluten in the flour. It also helps in making the dough easier to handle during kneading and shaping.

In Mexico, Pan De Muertos is displayed with marigolds, fruits and other tidbits, then eaten accompanied by pulque, a spirituous beverage made from cactus. Coffee and hot chocolate are also appropriate accompaniments.

(Bread of the Dead)
Makes 10-inch loaf
Five and one-half to six and one-half cups unsifted flour
One-half cup sugar
One teaspoon salt
One tablespoon anise seed
Two packages Fleischmann's Active Dry yeast
One-half cup milk
One-half cup water
One-half cup (1 stick) Fleischmann's margarine
Four eggs (at room temperature)
Orange glaze (recipe below)

Colored sprinkles or granulated sugar.

In large bowl thoroughly mix one and one-half cups flour, sugar, salt, anise seed and undissolved active dry yeast.

Combine milk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120 degrees F. - 130 degrees F.) Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and one cup flour. Beat at high speed two minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about one hour and 20 minutes.

Punch dough down. Cut off one piece of dough about three and one-half inches in diameter; set aside. Form large piece of dough into a smooth round ball. Place on a greased baking sheet; flatten to an 8-inch round. Pinch off 4 small pieces from remaining dough, each about one-inch in diameter. Divide the remaining piece of dough into three equal pieces. Roll each piece to a 25-inch rope. Braid ropes together.

Form into a circle and seal ends. Make an indentation with finger tips around large round of dough about 1-inch from edge. Carefully place braid over indentation. Secure in a few places with tooth picks. Roll remaining four pieces of dough into three-inch ropes. Pinch and curve to form birds in flight. Place in top of loaf. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about one hour.

Bake at 350 degrees F. about 40 minutes, or until done. Brush with Orange Glaze and dust with colored sprinkles or granulated sugar. Remove from baking sheet and cool on wire rack. Bread best served warm.

ORANGE GLAZE: Combine one-half cup sugar, one-third cup orange juice and two tablespoons grated orange peel in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil; simmer two minutes.

Helpful Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE

Dear Folks:
So many of us have gone farm and acreage nuts that I thought I would pass along this little — big hint which I think is quite a dilly.

Cedar posts and barbed wire fences cost nearly as much nowadays as the little mountain cabin or the horses and cows enclosed inside.

Cedar posts do not last forever. And the cost of labor when it comes to putting them in is prohibitive.

I know because I have a farm and when I saw those posts rotting out I nearly went "bananas."

I asked the caretaker why he didn't plant trees between each post and, by the time the post rotted, he could then use the trees? They would all be uniform by that time and he could then tie onto the trees and we would never have to replace posts again? He didn't know! "Never knew anybody who did that before."

So that's what I am going to do this year. For more than one reason . . .

It will make a beautiful frame for the farm. Ecology-wise, it's going to be wonderful. Think of the oxygen. And tree conservation is served too. No more cutting down a tree somewhere and planting it in concrete for a post, only to have it eventually rot away.

You all might look into this. Sure would be a savings for farmers and ranchers, cause baby trees are NOT expensive.

And, oh, do I love to get letters from you all. It's you whom we all love. Guess we couldn't live without you.

Now just watch my washing machine mess it up. It's on the blink, old dear . . .

Yeah, doll! We all understand . . . believe it.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:
When I scald tomatoes or peaches to can, I put water in my deep fryer, set the temperature gauge at desired heat, put the fruit in the basket until the peel slips. Immediately remove to a large pan of cold water.

You can have the fryer by the sink and save dripping water from the stove.

I find this method much faster.

Zelda Sheppard

Dear Heloise:
To save money on long-distance calls to close friends I talk to frequently. I have their names at the top of a wax pencil "memo" board next to my phone.

When I think of things I want to tell or ask them, I jot it down so I'll have it in front of me when we talk.

It saves a lot of "uhs" and

Afghan Offers Bower of Flowers

By JUDY LOVE

The weather may be chilly but beautiful flowers are never out of season. We've plotted a bright garden in full bloom right by your fireside, an enduring bouquet of cozy posies to warm you on a drafty day.

Our afghan this week is a bower of flowers worked on crocheted squares done in the afghan stitch and put together in a patchwork quilt effect. You'll crochet each square individually in a white background, fenced in with a green border. The autumn flowers are then embroidered in bright goldenrod and orange following the easy-to-read cross-stitch color chart.

You'll need a crochet yarn like Bernat's Sesame that has enough body to hold the flat even texture. The afghan will take pouches of light olive green and five of dark olive green for the border, and two each of goldenrod and orange for the flowers. You also will need one Bernat-Aero afghan hook, size "H" and one Bernat-Aero crochet hook, size "E" (or any size hook that will give the stitch gauge given below).

So get hooked, all you gardeners and you'll have an afghan that's bloomin' beautiful!

For easy instructions, just send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, c/o The Daily Freeman, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York, New York 10019. Ask for leaflet No. 405 and be sure to enclose your name, address and zip code.

KNIT KNACKS

Dear Judy Love: In both knitting and crocheting I find that my sweaters and dresses end up smaller than they should be. What am I doing wrong? — N.M.; South Dakota.

Crocheted squares done in the afghan stitch and put together in patchwork square fashion have flower motif.

Dear N.M.: You crochet and knit with a tight tension. If your garments are coming out too small, I think if you will use a hook or knitting needles in a size or two larger than called for you will overcome this problem. You should always check your stitch gauge before starting your project. Knit or crochet a 3-inch square using the yarn and needle called for. Block it, then count your rows up and stitches across.

If you have more stitches per inch than called for you are working too tightly and should use a larger hook or needles. If you have fewer stitches per inch you are working too loosely and should use smaller needles.

Don't worry too much about the size of the needle called for in the instructions — use whatever size that will give you the number of stitches per inch that the instructions call for. Best, Judy Love.

National Newspaper Carriers Week

Susan Rossman . . . 'Newspaper Girl'

KINGSTON When Susan Rossman took over a friend's newspaper delivery route two years ago, she joined a company of distinguished Americans who have earned money and learned valuable lessons by working a paper route.

Among the lessons she has learned is that it takes a long time to change people's ingrained habits.

"I don't know why they insist on calling me a 'newspaper boy,'" she laments. "I'm a newspaper girl."

Susan, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Rossman Jr. of 79 Andrew Street, took over the Daily Freeman route when a friend gave it up. She delivers 46 papers daily in the Mary's Avenue-Brewster Street area.

The decision to take over the route caused Mrs. Rossman to have some doubts. Susan holds a lifesaving certificate and had been working as swimming instructor aide at the YWCA and her mother felt she might be overextending herself, since she is also active in several other areas. The problem has been resolved. Mrs. Rossman said, with Susan giving up the lifesaving job.

"It was all her own idea," her mother noted.

Susan, a 9th grade student at Myron J. Michael Junior High School, is saving the money she makes on her paper route but has no specific goals in mind for it. She talks of being an art teacher some day, but is also involved in drama and is interested in doing volunteer work at one of the city's hospitals. A younger brother, John, also has a Daily Freeman route in the same general area.

Delivering newspapers has started many prominent Americans off in life. The American Heritage Exhibits of Freedom Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa., will open on Saturday, Oct. 12, an exhibit of 1,850 photographs of prominent persons who were once newspaper carriers. The opening will coincide with the observance of National Newspaper Carriers Week.

The pictures, autographs, and biographical sketches were collected by Sid Marks, a former lightweight boxing champion of Canada, who conceived the idea in 1945 and has spent $55,000 researching, tracing former newsmen, and preparing the exhibit. His appreciation for newsmen dates back to the early 1900's when he sold papers on the East Side of London. Marks, now 74 years old and living in Gardena, California, turned his collection over to the Freedom Foundation in 1973.

The display, mounted on 39 multi-color nylon panels, salutes such prominent figures as former Presidents Harry S. Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Lyndon B. Johnson; jazz trumpeter Louis Armstrong; poet Carl Sandburg; baseball's Jackie Robinson; motion picture producer Walt Disney; song writer Irving Berlin; heavyweight boxing champion Rocky Marciano; Ambassador Dr. Ralph Bunche; and many others.

The exhibit is open to school groups, clubs and organizations by appointment if desired. Arrangements may be scheduled with the Director, American Heritage Exhibits, Valley Forge, Pa. 19481.

Invitations to attend the dedication ceremonies have been extended to former newspaper carriers representing a cross section of leaders in government, business, the military, entertainment, and other fields.

The list includes, among others, entertainers Bob Hope, Frank Sinatra, and Danny Thomas; movie stars John Wayne, Robert Mitchum, Kirk Douglas, and Glenn Ford; television personalities Dick Van Dyke, Jack Webb, James Arness and Art Linkletter; broadcasters Eric Sevareid, Walter Cronkite, Lowell Thomas and Howard K. Smith; and many others.

Friends and customers of Susan Rossman have something to look forward to: every one of the former carriers named by the foundation was a male. Perhaps Susan can break the sex barrier and join the illustrious company as the first prominent woman to start her career on a newspaper delivery route.

Trade Seminar 'Successful'

NEW PALTZ Valley with Vassar College represented by the largest delegation of 27. Faculty and students from State University Centers at Albany and Stony Brook, Yale and Drexel Universities were also there. IBM probably had the biggest representation from off campus with 31 in attendance.

The impact of the seminar can be measured also from the fact that a representative of Nissio-Iwi, one of the major Japanese general trading companies, was there busily raising questions from the floor, according to Lin.

Enthusiasm of the attendants was another matter that gratified the sponsors. The questions on the reality and potential of U.S. China trade as well as what was going on in China captivated the audience so much that the seminar had to be extended more than an hour beyond the planned closing. It was obvious that the objectives of the seminar, that is, to serve the area business community, the social studies teachers and the college's own students, were well accomplished, Lin said.

The seminar was attended by delegations from two and four-year colleges in the mid-Hudson

SS, Wage Reports Due This Month

KINGSTON Quarterly wage reports and social security contributions for household workers are due by Oct. 31, according to George J. Habernig, social security district manager in Kingston.

"If you pay a household worker $50 or more in cash wages in any 3 month calendar quarter for work around your house, you must send a report of the wages and the social security contribution to the Internal Revenue Service within one month after the end of the quarter," Habernig said.

Quarters are January-February-March, April-May-June, July-August-September, and October-November-December. Wage reports and social security contributions for the third quarter of 1974 are due by Oct. 31.

Sheriff Finds Monetary Surplus

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON — Sheriff William B. Martin, who has requested the Ulster County Legislature to bail him out of a $75,000 deficit in his sheriff's personal services account, shaved that request to $30,000 Thursday afternoon, saying he could make up the balance with surpluses in other accounts including $20,000 from the jail food budget.

That suggestion brought forth considerable criticism at the county board's evening session when many legislators recalled that just last month the sheriff requested and received an additional $18,000 to make up a deficit in his food budget.

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8), suggested that "it is not logical for the sheriff to ask for more money for food one month and then declare a surplus in the food account the next month."

Charges of poor administration, using extra deputies and sheriff cars for campaign purposes and blaming the legislature for cutting his budget and then his discovering a surplus, characterized the reaction of the legislators for the most part. Only one legislator, Eugene Houck (D-Dist. 7), accused the legislature of campaigning.

The sheriff was summoned before the legislature at its afternoon session to explain why that he requested 12 new deputies and a maintenance man to staff the new county jail and that he received his staff request for the 13 men.

Martin blamed the deficit on the fact that Ulster County is housing Rockland County prisoners for $16 a day, when actual costs are more. He also alluded to the need for more deputy sheriffs, and said it was the first time he had exceeded his budget in eight years.

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) took strong exception saying Martin had exceeded his budget "five out of the last six years."

In Martin's opening remarks to the legislature he said he had received threats that if he didn't get paid, his deputies would not appear. At the evening session, many legislators voted "reluctantly" in favor of giving the sheriff the money because they said, they wanted the payroll and other sheriff department expenses to be met.

Explaining how he was able to come up with surpluses in his accounts at such a late date, Martin said that it was due to the harassment he has gone through for the past eight months which precluded his seeing fiscal reports since last April.

Many legislators took exception to Martin's claim of being understaffed pointing out deputies and a maintenance man to staff the new county jail and that he received his staff request for the 13 men.

Martin maintained he asked for 40 men but the legislature produced the minutes of the meeting of the sheriff's committee at which Martin requested "12 additional deputy sheriffs and one maintenance man."

Martin blamed his troubles on the Rockland County prisoners and the cost of maintaining them.

He was questioned extensively as to Ulster County's obligations to keep the Rockland prisoners here, if they are costing Ulster County taxpayers money.

Martin suggested that he was accepting Rockland prisoners because Orange County accepted Ulster's prisoners several years ago, when the new jail was built here.

Several legislators suggested that if the Rockland County prisoners were costing Ulster County money then the contract with Rockland "should be terminated immediately."

They suggested that Martin was a personal services account and a jail account.

remiss in not informing the legislature of the additional expense incurred because of their presence here.

County attorney Abram Molyneux said that Ulster County does not have to take Rockland's prisoners if it doesn't want to.

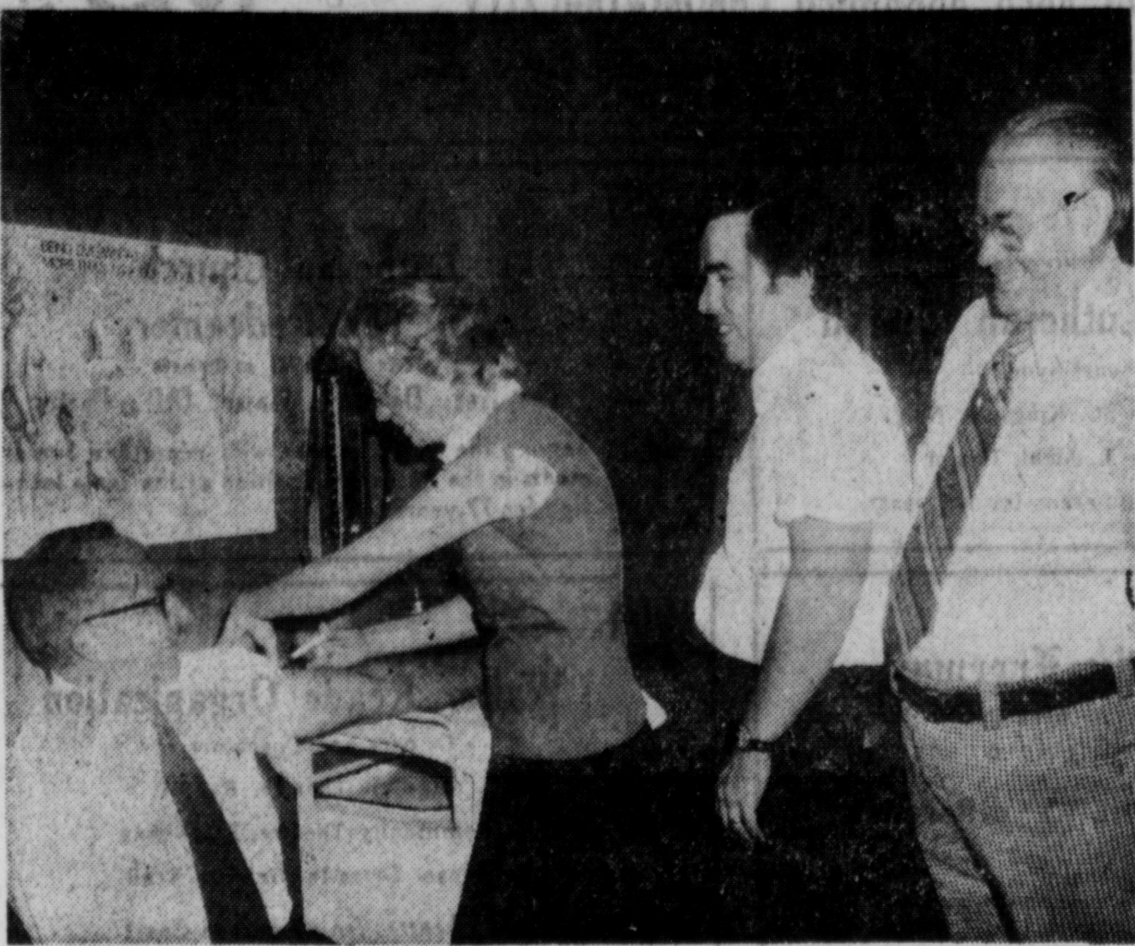

Asked what the cost per day to keep the prisoners amounts to, Martin said he didn't know.

Martin was also questioned as to why he claims he needs $38,000 now for part-time deputies for the last three months of the year when he only needed $20,000 for them this year up until now.

"I need these men," he said.

The sheriff also indicated that Rockland County prisoners would not be housed here after the first of the year but that he still wants to keep the additional part-time deputy sheriffs on his staff.

Discussion also centered on bookkeeping practices with Martin suggesting that he would prefer to have all his accounts under one budget rather than separated as they are now in

FLU SHOTS — With pinpoint accuracy, Ulster County Health Department nurse Helen Genies administers influenza vaccine to Legislator C. Freeman Lasher (R-Dist. 1), who accepts the momentary discomfort with admirable stoicism. Legislators (L-R) John Dwyer (D-City) and Louis Resnick (D-Dist. 7) wait their turn. It was the legislators' turn Thursday to receive the complimentary flu shots; by mid-October an estimated 2,000 county employees and senior citizens will have received the Health Department's flu vaccinations. ## Commission Changes Meeting Date

By MATT SPIRENG

ALBANY — A special meeting of the New York State Commission of Correction has been called for Wednesday, Oct. 16, to look into allegations which have been made concerning the administration of the Ulster County Jail, the Freeman has learned.

Sheriff William B. Martin, County Legislature chairman Peter J. Savago, and Legislature Sheriff's Committee chairman Clifford W. Snyder have been requested to attend the meeting.

According to Commission of Correction administrator Morton Van Hoesen, he mistakenly announced earlier this week that the matter was to be taken up at the next regular meeting of the Commission, Nov. 12. The change in date of the meeting is of significance in two major areas. First of all, it apparently indicates more clearly concern on the part of the Commission about the local jail situation. The date change also moves the hearing before the Commission from after the November elections before the elections.

Sheriff Martin has previously stated that he would prefer the hearing be held before election day to dispell doubt.

Albert Berkowitz, Commissioner of Correction, while refusing to go into any detail concerning what a lengthy probe by the Commission investigative unit has uncovered, did indicate today that the special meeting has been called to give a "priority" item at the regular October meeting of the Commission on Tuesday. It was decided then to call Martin, Snyder and Savago before the Commission.

Savago said today both he and Snyder will definitely attend the Oct. 16 meeting. Attempts to contact Martin were unsuccessful. Meanwhile, in another matter relating to the Ulster County Jail, it has been learned that Sheriff Martin recently forwarded a petition signed by over 70 inmates at the jail which requested television sets for inmate use.

The petition was not addressed to any specific person or body of government.

A letter from Martin to Savago accompanying the petition said, in part, "This is a demand for your immediate attention and approval which I submit herewith for your decision." Martin stated in his letter that the petition was "to the Ulster County Legislature" and that it is up to that body to decide on the expenditure.

Savago responded to Martin by letter, stating that if the county were to purchase the televisions "it would have to be a budgetary appropriation requested by you as sheriff."

Oil Price Rollback in Area

NEW YORK CITY — Six firms that distribute or sell gasoline and heating oil in Ulster County overcharged their customers by about $20,000 between July 1 and October 9, according to the Federal Energy Administration office in New York City.

All six firms have agreed to refund customers by rolling back their prices until the overcharges are negated, an FEA spokesman told the Freeman.

Two firms in Northern Dutchess County are also involved. The firms involved, their location, the material they sell or distribute and the amount of the roll-back or refund involved follows:

● Reid's Heating Service, New Paltz, kerosene, 3.5 cents per gallon rollback.

● Rizzo Ford, Highland, gasoline, $4,118.80 refund.

● Leo's Texaco Service Station, Highland, gasoline, $2,420.62 refund.

● R and J Sunoco Service Center, Highland, gasoline, $688.05 refund.

● E. Lukach Gulf Service, Highland, gasoline, $1,033.10 refund.

● Spero's Exxon, Highland, gasoline, $2,787.09 refund.

Two firms from Northern Dutchess County involved are:

● V and O Oil Supply Co., Rhinebeck, heating oil, $8,217 refund.

● Edward Rancich Oil Supply, Red Hook, heating oil, $1,179 refund.

FEA inspectors uncovered the overcharges during routine inspection trips, or during trips to retailers or distributors that had been mentioned in consumer complaints.

The FEA stated that there is no provision for direct reimbursement of a customer who paid too much. Individual customers, however, may recoup some of their losses by purchasing the gasoline or heating oil at the lowered prices.

An FEA spokesman told the Freeman that all of the roll-backs were performed voluntarily by the dealers. And he emphasized that in "99 per cent of the cases" the overcharges were the result of honest mistakes, attributable to confusion or ignorance of the law, rather than any outright attempts by the dealers to purposely gouge the consumers.

The Federal Energy Administration has been responsible for enforcing oil price controls since July 1. Prior to that, the Internal Revenue Service had responsibility. Between Jan. 1 and July 1, the IRS uncovered 1,569 price violations in New York and New Jersey amounting to overcharges of $11,950,385.

A's and Dodgers Disagree on Who's Best

By JIM COUR
UPI Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers won 102 games and finished four in front of Cincinnati in the National League West. They had the best record in baseball. The two-time World Champion Oakland A's scored 90 victories and were five ahead of Texas at the conclusion of the American League West.

The Dodgers handled the Pittsburgh Pirates while the A's beat the Baltimore Orioles each in four games—in the playoffs which were wrapped up Wednesday.

So which club is the best? The challenger and the champion will get down to settling that question Saturday when the first all-California World Series in history unfolds at Dodger Stadium.

But there was plenty of conjecture—from each side—as the Dodgers and the A's got ready to hold drills here today.

"I don't think we're consistently given credit day after day for being the best team in baseball," said Oakland's Reggie Jackson, the American League's MVP a year ago. "Maybe this year, if we beat the Dodgers, people will finally give us our due. Three world championships in a row is about as good as a team can do."

Dick Green, the A's 11-year veteran second baseman, sounded almost bellicose.

"They've (the Dodgers) been popping off all year," he said. "I don't know if its cockiness or confidence but they've sure got it. Hell, they were even talking about the World Series while they were still playing the Pirates. Well, we'll see. Most of us think that Baltimore is just as good as any team in the National League."

"We'll just wait and see," said Davey Lopes, who stole 59 bases for the Dodgers during the regular season and then had three more thefts against the Pirates. "They're a great ball club but it's not my job to pop off the way they do. Besides, it's poor professionalism to knock another team's record. Which is what they've done."

Jackson, who hit .289 while belting 29 home runs and collecting 93 RBIs this season, thinks Charles O. Finley's A's have the momentum building for something bigger than just three straight world titles.

"This is a young team although we've been through a lot already," the big slugger noted. "But we have a helluva shot at four and five world championships in a row."

"First, though, we have to get the third and that's all we're thinking about now. We'll worry about No. 4 next year and No. 5 the year after."

The Dodgers took exception to remarks attributed to the A's that they built their 102-60 divisional record because of the presence of the lowly San Diego Padres and the San Francisco Giants.

Dodger outfielder-catcher Joe Ferguson asked, "They shouldn't badmouth our division—what about theirs?"

"Really, I'd like to know who on that observation and now they've beaten to get to the everyone is telling us again playoffs. There's no way their how good the Dodgers are and division can compare to ours, how bad we're going to be beat Besides Cincinnati, we had to by them. I don't buy that at beat teams like Atlanta and all."

"First, though, we have to Houston. I'll match those teams against any in Oakland's division any day."

Sal Bando, the A's third baseman and captain, helped to remarks attributed to the A's seven games in the 1972 World Series and stop the New York Mets in seven in '73.

"For two years," he said, "all we heard was how good the Reds were in particular and how much stronger the National League was in general. Well, I think we burst a few bubbles

Catfish Throws Curve at Charlie O. Andrews Sues Finley for 2.5 Million

Mike Moves For Slander

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Former Oakland utility infielder Mike Andrews has launched a courtroom attack against A's owner Charles O. Finley for his treatment of Andrews during last year's World Series.

Andrews, who was temporarily dropped from the team roster after two errors at second base, filed a $2.5 million libel and slander lawsuit against Finley Thursday.

In the Superior Court action, Andrews, 31, alleges that he "has been held up to public scorn, contempt, ridicule and disgrace" because of Finley's treatment.

The suit also said Andrews was unable to get a baseball job after his unconditional release by Oakland because of a "negligent and false" statement saying he had a shoulder problem.

The statement, Andrews said, was "animated solely by malice."

Dr. Harry R. Walker, whom Finley ordered to examine Andrews, is also a defendant in the suit, which asks $1 million in damages and $1.5 million in punitive damages.

"Two other doctors examined me and said the arm was fine," Andrews said at the time. "There's nothing wrong with my arm."

Andrews had been left behind after his examination by Walker when the team flew to New York. He underwent the examination on Finley's orders after he made a pair of errors in the 12th inning of the second series game. The A's lost it 10-7 to the New York Mets.

The player subsequently was handed a letter noting he was disabled by a bad shoulder injury.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn reinstated Andrews after many of his incensed teammates spoke out and manager Dick Williams, who had managed Andrews earlier in Boston, sided with them.

Andrews made a final Series appearance as a pinch hitter before his release.

SUING THE BOSS — Mike Andrews (R), the Oakland A's second baseman who was pulled out of the 1973 World Series, filed a $2,500,000 libel and slander suit Thursday against the team's owner, Charles O. Finley (L). After Andrews made a few errors in the '73 series, Finley ordered him examined by the team doctor and a statement was later issued saying Andrews was unable to play because of a shoulder problem. Andrews contends the diagnosis was "animated solely by malice."

Earl Weaver Rehired

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Orioles, despite re-hiring him in 1968 with one World Series victory (1970) also to his credit.

After the Orioles were eliminated by Oakland for the second straight season Wednesday, there had been reports that Weaver might be out as manager with, of all teams, even those same A's being rumored as a likely landing place for the doughty skipper.

"There was never any question, at least in our minds, about his return with us," said Baltimore General Manager Frank Cashen. "After all, he's won five divisional titles out of six tries and you can't do much better than that."

Weaver's Orioles were beaten by Oakland in this year's A.L. playoffs, three games to one, but the 44-year-old manager has won three pennants since

EARL WEAVER

Weaver actually joined the Orioles as a first base coach under manager Hank Bauer in 1968 after a successful tenure as manager in the Baltimore minor league chain. He won pennants at Fox Cities (1960), Elmira (1964) and at Rochester of the International League in 1966 before moving up to the parent club two years later.

He assumed the Baltimore managerial job when Bauer was fired midway through the 1968 season. Since then the Orioles have won three A.L. pennants.

However, last season, Weaver was involved in a drunken driving incident in which he reportedly chewed out a Maryland state trooper and damaged the door of the patrol car. At that time, it was rumored the Orioles were looking to dump the manager, but again, the club backed Weaver up and he rewarded them by winning the East Division again this season.

Hoffberger, whose family owned National Brewing Co. owns a controlling interest in the Orioles, said "It hurts the company (National Brewing) when the Orioles continue to sustain losses, or only make modest profits."

"Maybe I'm just a lousy salesman," he said. "I've tried to draw the fans and I can't."

Baltimore for Sale... If

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Jerry Hoffberger says as long as the price is reasonable he'll sell the Baltimore Orioles even if the buyers move the American League team.

Hoffberger, board chairman of the Baltimore Orioles Baseball Club, Inc., said Thursday the team has been up for sale for some time, but there have been no takers.

"I have said before if I make up my mind that it is in the best interests of the stockholders—there are about 1,000—I would recommend selling the Orioles," Hoffberger said. "I've been saying that for a year, but nobody has made an offer."

Asked if he would make a sale condition keeping the team in Baltimore, Hoffberger replied, "I don't see how any sale to a guy in Pascagoula or wherever could contain that condition."

The Baltimore News American quoted Hoffberger Thursday as saying he was deciding the terms for the Orioles, who were eliminated from the American League Playoffs Wednesday by the Oakland A's.

"I don't understand," Hoffberger said wearily. "It's been the same thing I've been saying for a year. The world is in a turmoil. There's practically a recession and the headlines are about a baseball team."

"I'm a businessman and the chairman of the board of the Orioles baseball club," he went on. "I'm constantly thinking about terms, but I have come to no firm figures."

The Orioles have drawn poorly for some time. This year the team drew 962,000 fans, 2,000 more than last year, but the total was due only to the Birds' torrid September drive to the American League East.

"I can't let Miguel spoil my bid for the title," said Hear, the No. 5-ranked World Boxing Council lightweight. "I've been chasing (champion Roberto) Duran ever since I whipped Changó Carmona almost a year and a half ago."

It's A 'Subway Series'

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — It will be a "subway series," the Bay Area Transit District said Thursday.

BART, the new 75-mile subway system serving the San Francisco-Oakland area with a tube under the bay, will extend its night service hours to the Coliseum for the games there.

Regular service on BART ends at 8 p.m., but when series games are at the Coliseum, the service will keep operating until one-hour after the game ends so that "subway" fans from San Francisco and other cities can get home.

A station is located within walking distance of the Coliseum.

The term "subway series" originated in New York City starting in 1921 when the New York Giants and New York Yankees squared off in World Series competition for the first time.

During the 1950s the Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers made the "subway series" an annual habit for major league baseball fans.

Lightweight Bout
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Lightweight contender Jimmy Hear of Los Angeles meets Mexico's Miguel Mayon tonight in a scheduled 10-round bout.

"I can't let Miguel spoil my bid for the title," said Hear, the No. 5-ranked World Boxing Council lightweight. "I've been chasing (champion Roberto) Duran ever since I whipped Changó Carmona almost a year and a half ago."

Hunter Set To Depart After WS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim "Catfish" Hunter, it seems, has thrown a curve at Charles O. Finley, and Mike Andrews has thrown a high, hard one.

The Oakland A's owner may not be able to handle either pitch.

Finley, usually up to his baseball cap in controversy, hasn't even opened his mouth on the eve of the 1974 World Series — but still finds his foot in it.

Hunter, a 25 game winner this season while helping the A's capture the American League pennant, reportedly wants to leave the team after the World Series with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Hunter, according to a newspaper story, claims that Finley has failed to pay half of his $100,000 salary for 1974.

Reached at a downtown Los Angeles hotel Thursday night, Hunter would neither confirm nor deny the report.

"I'm not saying anything at this time," Hunter said — or rather didn't say.

"I don't want to talk," he added.

Jim Bank, the A's traveling secretary, said he had "heard the story about Hunter, but you'll have to talk to Mr. Finley about it."

Mr. Finley was unavailable for comment.

The Chicago Sun-Times story said Hunter had notified Finley a month ago that he planned to become a free agent on Oct. 21, the day after the completion of the World Series, should it last seven games.

Hunter said he received $50,000 of his salary in the regular bi-weekly installments, but Finley refused to pay the remaining $50,000. He said he first asked Finley for payments two months ago and the Oakland owner has since failed to answer three letters.

The final letter a month ago said Hunter planned to declare himself a free agent.

Hunter could have declared himself a free agent 10 days after the first missed payment but delayed his action to participate in the American League playoffs and the World Series.

Meanwhile, No. 2 pitcher Ken Holtzman and No. 3 pitcher Vida Blue are also apparently not overjoyed with playing for Oakland.

Holtzman has said throughout most of the season that he plans to retire this year, and Blue, one-time ace of Finley's staff, was quoted as saying once: "The only time I'm happy here is when I get my paycheck."

Coaches Stay
CINCINNATI (AP) — The coaching staff of the Cincinnati Reds will remain intact next year, President Bob Howsam announced Wednesday.

Joining Manager George "Sparky" Anderson for the 1975 season will be third base coach Alex Grammas, batting coach Ted Kluszewski, first base coach George Scherger and pitching coach Larry Shepard.

Anderson has another year left in his contract, which Howsam extended during the 1973 season.

All four of the coaches have been with Anderson since he joined the Reds in 1970.

The Garvey Standards

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Steve Garvey has set certain standards for himself.

Not just on the field, either. Garvey believes that a human being should be nice to other human beings. He's truly the Mr. Nice Guy of professional baseball.

"I've always felt as a ball player and as an athlete that I have a responsibility to the public," the Los Angeles Dodgers' star first baseman said.

"People take their time and come out and support us (the Dodgers). I feel I should wait around and give them autographs and answer questions if they want to see me."

Garvey, 25, was the MVP of the All-Star game at Pittsburgh in July and he's a top candidate for the National League MVP Award, too.

During the regular season, he batted .312, collected 200 hits, smashed 21 home runs and drove in 111 runs. During the Dodgers' 3-1 NL playoff series victory over Pittsburgh, he hit .389 with two homers and five RBIs.

Although the media wasn't kind in describing his fielding shortcomings, the 5-10, 190-pound former Michigan State defensive back says he's always thought of reporters as his friends.

"I've always felt that I should make myself available to members of the media," he said. "They've helped me get where I am."

"When I was in Pittsburgh this year (for the All-Star game), everybody seemed to be commenting on my cooperation. Well, I just feel it's something that I should do. But field and his manners, he's the darling of the Los Angeles news media. And I try to make the writers' jobs a lot easier."

Because of his success on the field and his manners, he's the darling of the Los Angeles news media. And I try to make the writers' jobs a lot easier."

During the regular season, he me" the $114,000 a year Alabama native said. Then he broke into a smile and added, "they've never found anything yet either."

"It doesn't bother me but I've been accused more and convicted less than anyone I know."

Sutton is convinced his reputation for doctoring balls actually helps him.

"It just gives the hitters something more to think about," he said.

Sutton has been almost flawless since July 25. That was eight days after 13-game winner Tommy John was lost because of an elbow injury.

He's won 15 of 16 since that date, including his last 11 in a row. He accounted for two of really do. But that's not unusual. I've liked them since Pittsburgh, giving up just one March.

He's the same Dodger right-hander who went 14 starts and nine weeks without winning a game. He's also one of three Dodgers (the others are Willie Crawford and Jim Brewer) who were members of the 1966 Los Angeles National League championship club. That team was blown out in four straight by Baltimore.

Kingston, Red Hook Hoople's Specials

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Peerless Prognosticator

Alas, and alack, it's Hoople back for another week of sparkling speculations.

Last week we trotted home with a glorious 52 slate to boost the overall record to 15-6 or, for the mathematicians, .719, ummm-kumph!

Without any further ado, let's plunge right into this week's calculations:

ROUNDOUT 18, MARLBORO 7
Four straight for the Ganders who can show off their newly discovered offensive ability against a team just right for it. The long season continues for the Dukes.

KETCHAM 12, SAUGERTIES 0
The last time Ketcham played at Saugerties the Sawyers upset the Wappingers team. That just might happen again, but we don't really think so. Saugerties still hasn't displayed the kind of offensive punch necessary to win against the better teams.

HIGHLAND 26, ONTEORA 0
We might have picked this one by a wider margin but what's the sense? Rolling up a prediction is as bad as a team rolling up the score. Suffice it to say Highland is playing well and won't be sidetracked by those Boiceville Battlers, kack-kack-kack.

RED HOOK 21, NEW PALTZ 14
Quite an important game, especially for the Hugenots. We see New Paltz giving Red Hook a run for its money, but the Raiders have simply been overwhelming in knocking aside their first three opponents. If Jim Merriken doesn't beat New Paltz, someone else will.

KINGSTON 13, ROOSEVELT 12
Our hunch pick of the week, heh-heh. Roosevelt is undefeated and Kingston is winless, but that will change as the Maroons play good football from wire-to-wire instead of just in spurts. The Hyde Park Presidents are an improved football team, but they'll be outclassed this time.

WALLKILL 24, ELLENVILLE 6
Wallkill seems to have found itself after its first game loss to Red Hook. Question is, can the Panthers repeat as league champs? Certainly Ellenville won't be the team to put the brakes on the Wallkill steamroller.

LIBERTY 21, PINE BUSH 8
Pine Bush beat Liberty last year after winning only one of its first three, but this season Liberty is better and Pine Bush is an enigma. Until the Bushmen find the answer to their riddled offense, losses will be commonplace for what should be a better-than-average team.

Now that you know all about Saturday's high school games, here's the way the college encounters will go:

We foresee the Kansas State Wildcats edging a fine Kansas club, 21-18. The Michigan-Michigan State game will be a similar donnybrook with the Wolverines gaining a 24-21 triumph over the MSU Spartans.

In the annual Southwest grudge battle pitting Oklahoma against Texas, we look for Darrell Royal's lads to register a stunning 34-24 upset, har-rumph!

Watch for Nebraska to thump Missouri, 31-17, and Illinois to trim Purdue, 24-17.

And in the other games it will be: Rutgers 28, Ithaca 14; Alabama 31, Florida State 9; Arkansas 23, Baylor 10; Boston College 24, William and Mary 13; Holy Cross 41, Colgate 24; Harvard 39, Columbia 7; Penn State 47, Wake Forest 13; Princeton 16; Duke 28, Army 13; Notre Dame 44, Rice 7; Ohio State 28, Wisconsin 14; Pitt State 47, Wake Forest 13; Syracuse 38, West Virginia 13; Syracuse 34, Navy 26; Texas A&M 14, Texas Tech 10; UCLA 23, Stanford 13; USC 28, Washington St. 8; and Yale 28, Brown 14, boola-boola.

Five-Way Tie in Japan; Player Rips Crenshaw

INZAIMACHI, Japan (UPI) — Japan's Kosaku Shimada and Americans pros Don Bies, Hubert Green, Jim Simons and Bob Menne shared a one-stroke lead with a two-under-par 140 on Friday in the second round of the $300,000 Taiheyo Club Masters golf tournament.

Bies collected a special prize of $2,000 for the day's best score—a four under par 32-35-67 on the 7,187 yard par 35-36-71 Sobu Country Club course.

Simons had a 68, Menne a 69 and Greene a 71. Shimada, who shot a 68 Thursday and trailed first round leader Shigeru Uchida by one stroke, had a one-over-par 72.

Fifty pros and amateur Tsutomu Irie made the cut of a seven-over-par 149 for the low 45 scores and ties for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

American veteran pro Gay Brewer, winner of $65,000 in the first Taiheyo Club Masters tournament in 1972, was eliminated when he shot a three-over-par 74 for a 152.

Other well known pros who failed to make the cut were George Archer (75-76-151) and Forrest Fezler (73-77-150) and England's Maurice Bembridge (75-75-150).

One stroke behind the leaders were Americans Gene Littler, who fired a one under par 70 Friday, Bert Yancey (70) and Bob Murphy (72). Nationalist China's Hsieh Yung-yo (72) and Kuo Chi-hsiung (71) and Japanese pros Masashi "Jumbo" Ozaki (73), Kikuo Arai (71) and Seichi Kanai (70).

WENTWORTH, England (UPI) — South African Gary Player, bidding to win the title for a record sixth time, scored an impressive 4 and 3 victory over Texan Ben Crenshaw in the first round of the Piccadilly world match play golf championship over Wentworth's tough Burma Road West Course today.

Player tackled another American in Friday's semifinals when he lined up against Californian Jerry Heard who defeated last year's runner-up, Australian Graham Marsh, by two holes.

The other semi-final is between U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin and Britain's Tony Jacklin. The 29-year-old from St. Louis, Mo., scored a 4 and 2 win against New Zealand's Bob Charles, while Jacklin crushed fellow-White Peter Oosterhuis 7 and 6.

Did Russians Bug Rooms?

DETROIT (UPI) — Gordie Howe can't say for certain the Team Canada members' rooms were bugged in the Soviet Union—he just knows the hockey players didn't do much talking in them.

"We did all our talking in the halls, or in the lobby," Howe cracked Thursday when asked about the hockey series, which the Russians took 4-1-3.

Howe, who scored a power-play goal and a short-handed score when the Houston Aeros beat the Michigan Stags 5-4 Thursday in a World Hockey Association exhibition, said, "You have to have a sense of humor over there."

"They phone you in the middle of the afternoon. When you were trying to sleep before the game," said Howe, now in his second season of starring with his sons for the Aeros.

"My roommate suggested taking the phone off the hook, but that didn't work. The maids would just walk in the rooms and put it back on," he said. "You can't lock your room over there; they don't have any locks."

At 3 a.m. two big guys would come in your room, turn the lights on, and search everything in the room. You would wake up and watch them but that didn't bother them at all.

"They just kept on searching until they were done. Then they'd turn out the lights and walk out," Howe said.

Watkins Glen Drops the 'Bog'

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (UPI) — The infamous "bog" of Watkins Glen has devoured its last car, according to Grand Prix race track officials in this tiny upstate community.

The bog, a natural drainage area about 200 yards long and 75 yards wide, has for the past few years been providing racing enthusiasts with a popular alternative to the Formula One cars screeching around the nearby track during racing weekends.

"It all began in July of 1971 after we had reconstructed the circuit and water had accumulated in the area," said Bob Kelly, track public relations director. "At first, the bog was a test to see if spectators could drive their motorcycles through the mud from one side to another without getting stuck."

The bog soon tired of these appetizers, however, and spectators brought old car wrecks to the track during races to satisfy its growing appetite. In almost ritualistic ceremonies, the crowds drove the wrecks into the bog and set them afire.

Yet the bog's greed grew as quickly as its reputation. Finally, during an event at the track last July, the bog was fed its first fresh food. Sacrificed in the bog along with the usual old junkers was a shiny new car, stolen from a nearby parking lot.

The bog's voracious appetite reached a new high last weekend when the Grand Prix of the United States was held at the "Finger Lakes track. It consumed a total of 11 vehicles, including at least two late model cars and a Greyhound bus chartered from Syracuse.

"This situation has become serious now," said Kelly. "It'll either be filled in or paved over, but I assure you it won't be there next year."

Kelly said the track had hoped to fill in the bog with gravel prior to last weekend's race "but we didn't have the manpower or the time."

William Cuddy, Schuylers County district attorney, said authorities are investigating the car thefts but had not made any arrests.

"Were working on a few leads and have a roll of film to develop which could help us," he said. "You must realize that it's very difficult to prevent this sort of thing from happening with a crowd of about 115,000 because police mobility is so hampered."

Michael Maloney, county sheriff, said undercover agents are scattered throughout the crowd during race weekends "trying to weed out potential troublemakers. It's really unusual that the bus was taken in broad daylight on Saturday afternoon. The other thefts took place at night."

Maloney refused to answer directly if uniformed police patrol the bog area during the races. "It depends on the situation. If someone is hurt, for instance, we'll immediately send police into the area."

Witnesses say police officers and photographers went into the area, particularly at night, for reasons of safety.

Maloney denied reports that cars had been stolen and burned in the bog last year. He added that some passing cars had been attacked and stoned during previous bog "ceremonies."

"When that occurred, we'd block off the nearby entrance and divert traffic to other entrances," Maloney explained.

He said alcohol and drugs were "definitely major problems" at the bog. "Alcohol is legal, but we arrest everyone we can on drug charges," he said, adding that 10 persons were apprehended on felony drug charges during the weekend.

Track public relations director Kelly agreed with Maloney that there was "adequate security" during the weekend. "It's certainly unfortunate that the cars were stolen and burned but I don't think it's too unusual to have about 12 showoffs in such a large crowd." There were from 150 to 200 police officers on duty at the track during the weekend.

William Simele, the mayor of Watkins Glen, said the crowd at last weekend's race caused no problems in the village, which is located about four miles from the track.

"They were well-behaved here and were no problem at all," he said. "The track's been open for about 26 years and most of the village looks forward to the crowds each year."

Warns and Noonan Fire Five Touchdown Passes

SAUGERTIES Nancy's Lounge crushed Mountain Boys 40-6 for its third win with a tie in the A Division of the SAA Touch Football League.

Howard Johnson's trounced Edgar's 28-6 for their fourth straight win in the B Division, while Mt. Marion edged Rotron in a battle of safeties, 4-2, to lead the C Division with a 3-1 record. Holy Cross routed West Saugerties Wizards 34-6 in B action.

Jack Warns fired five TD passes for Nancy's hitting John Carnright three times (31, 3, 13 yards); Jerry Malgieri twice (3, 44); Malgieri also romped 53 yards with a kick return. A Dennis Lucas-Mark Archer 47-yard pass accounted for the lone Mountain score.

George Suesz unloaded three touchdown passes for Ho-Jos to Nick Ascenzio (14, 16) and Doc Silinovich (41). Fred Fisher passed 7 yards to Ascenzio and scored a safety. Brute Donovan ran 50 yards with an interception for Edgar's.

Bill Noonan threw for all five Holy Cross touchdowns, hitting five different receivers: Dick Smith (16), Dave Ratto (32), Dick Mears (33), Alan Pease (33) and Henry Meara (29). Bob Garrison passed 31 yards to Alan Kane for the lone Wizard tally.

Mt. Marion won on safeties by Tim Maloney and Fred Jones. Rich Cyr had a safety for Rotron.

Bostic Scores His 4th Ace

KINGSTON Harvey Bostic, the Wiltwyck Golf Club pro, now claims the fourth hole-in-one of his career. His latest ace occurred on Wiltwyck's challenging par-three 16th hole.

Bostic holed out with a 5-iron shot. He was playing in a foursome with Steve Nekos, John Turk and O.D. Ingalls.

Dave Bing Back On the Payroll

DETROIT (UPI) — Dave Bing is back on the payroll, which makes the Pistons pretty happy but in this case doesn't please the Detroit guard on his.

Bing, insisting it isn't a caveat, reported to the National Basketball Association team's training camp this morning, ending his bid to get his contract renegotiated by holding out. The eight-year veteran wanted the last two years on his three-year pact renegotiated after discovering 13 other guards in the league make more than the estimated $190,000 per year he does.

"I'm not happy and I don't want anybody to think I am," said Bing, who said he decided to abandon his expensive holdout after his teammates asked him to Wednesday in a meeting at Bob Lanier's house.

"But just because I'm unhappy does not mean I'm going to fall over and die. I'm going to keep on living," Bing said.

Coach Ray Scott, who of course welcomed his top guard back to the team, and new Detroit Owner Bill Davidson refused from the first to reopen Bing's contract.

Operation Bowa

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Phillies shortstop Larry Bowa will undergo surgery Monday for removal of a loose particle in his left knee. The club announced Thursday.

Bowa has been bothered by the condition for the past few months. Phils trainer Don Seger said the operation was being performed simply to remove the irritant from Bowa's leg.

Sun Ties for WFL's Western Division

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — The Southern California Sun has clinched a tie for the World Football League's Western Division title but Coach Tom Fears says, critically, they didn't play like it.

"We were off all over," Fears said Thursday night after the Sun's 25-23 victory over the Shreveport Steamers for Southern California's sixth win in a row. "The passing wasn't our best. The receiving wasn't our best."

"There is consolation clinching a tie for the division championship, but we don't want to go for ties."

Tony Adams threw a 47-yard pass to Ralph Nelson for one Sun touchdown and ran in from the seven for another score.

Southern California's 11th win in 15 games left it five games in front of the Hawaiians in the WFL West with five games left. Shreveport, 4-10-1, is third.

The Sun's other TD came on a one-yard run from Alonzo Emery and ex-Stanford Rose Bowl hero Rod Garcia kicked a 30-yard field goal.

Shreveport scored on a six-yard run by Paul Gipson and John Mallory's 34-yard recovery of a Nelson fumble in the first half. Jim Nance ran nine yards for a TD in the fourth quarter.

"We had a chance for about seven interceptions and only came up with one," Fears said.

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The World Football League has postponed indefinitely the draft of the players from the financially-stricken Detroit and Jacksonville franchises in hopes the teams will be able to play next year.

The remaining playing schedules of the teams, which have been taken over by the league, will be cancelled for the rest of 1974, though.

"We have decided to cancel remaining games of these two teams but several potential investors have indicated they wish to keep the teams intact for a fresh start next year," said WFL Commissioner Gary Davidson Thursday. "We are negotiating with several groups, some of which cities for the 1975 season."

Orange Wins Volleyball Match

STONE RIDGE
Ulster County Community College's women's volleyball team lost the battle to nationally-ranked Orange Community of Middletown, but they have gained valuable combat experience for the long war ahead.

The third-ranked fillies from Middletown defeated UCCC 15-7 and 15-11, but Ulster's refusal to crack under pressure in the second game was heartening to Coach Pat McLean.

"I was pleased with the team's showing," she said. "It was good in that we actually led the tough Orange team in the early part of the second game. We learned a real lesson and I think we should breeze through the remainder of the schedule."

Sue Kuhn, the freshman ace, again excelled with 10 points and several service aces. Barbara Miles was the top setter and Sharon Kuriger turned in the greatest number of spikes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An opportunity will present itself today through one of your social contacts. You're not apt to spot it until the last minute.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone who made promises but has not come through will mention doing a favor for you again. Take him up on it. This time he'll produce in part.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If making a major purchase today, don't pay the first price that's asked even though you feel it's worth it. There'll be savings if you bargain.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be the first to call attention to mistake you make today. If you do, others will help clear things up rather than embarrass you about it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be sensible about getting the proper return for anything you perform of value. Others do not expect something for nothing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll get another to go along with your ideas more readily if you don't lay everything on them at once. Feed him information bit-by-bit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is the time to try to get more out of your head than you do out of your purse. Don't buy what you can get on other terms.
